POLICE RESERVES OUT IN TROLLEY STRIKE

START CARS UNDER GUARD

New Bedford Company's First Attempt to Break Tie-Up Failed, and Cars Were Sent Back to Barn—Partial Concession to Men.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW BEDFORD, July 25.—Armed policemen are guarding all cars which the Union Street Railway Company is running in the city to-day in its fight with the striking motormen and conductors.

Under orders of Mayor Thomas Thompson, Police Chief Thomas L. Donaghy, Jr., has ordered out all the reserve force. The officers are reporting at the Weld street car barn.

Strike Leaders Denounce Violence.

The strikers deplore the violence which has occurred. The leaders ask the people to refrain from disorder.

A local paper bulletins a statement that Mayor Thompson will appeal to the State Board of Arbitration to intervene. District Organizer D. S. Fitzgerald says he hopes the Mayor will do so.

Judge Milliken of the District Court, on imposing sentences to-day in charges of disorder, said that he would make an example of any offenders.

President Crapo makes a partial concession to the strikers to-day in offering a new wage scale, to go into effect August 5, giving the men twenty-five cents an hour at the beginning of the sixth year of employment. The men demand an initial wage of twenty-five cents.

The company started out twenty-seven cars at 8 o'clock this morning, too late to take the working people to the mills. Disorder followed. Motorman David, running a Padanaram car, was hit on the head with a brick and knocked out. He is in a serious condition in the Emergency Hospital.

Superintendent Edward E. Potter, for the company, asked Chief Donaghy for a policeman to guard every car, else the car would be returned to the barns.

POLICE RESERVES CALLED OUT.

At 9:30 the cars were ordered back and the system was completely tied up. At 10 o'clock President Crapo telephoned Mayor Thompson demanding that police protection be furnished. Then Mayor Thompson instructed Chief Donaghy to put policemen on the cars and call out the reserves.

There are thirty reserves to aid the ninety regular men. The reserves were called away from their looms and spinning mules in the mills. As fast as they came to headquarters they were ordered to the car barn for strike duty. The first car out was a Purchase street one, with Reserve Officer George Grant riding on front. By 11 o'clock six cars were out and policemen were hurrying to the car barn to go out on other cars.

DISTURBER GETS TEN DAYS.

Joseph Mahar, arrested last night on charge of disturbing the peace when the mob gathered about the Weld street car barn, was sentenced to ten days in the House of Correction by Judge Milliken in the district court to-day. He appealed and furnished $200 bonds.

Archie Gouillett, the thirteen-year-old boy arrested for throwing stones last night, was fined $5. The fine is continued over to August 22, as the court said he wished the boy to earn the money and pay the fine himself.

CRAPO WARNS MEN.

President Crapo of the railway company posted a notice to his employes to the effect that unless they reported for duty before 9:30 o'clock to-day they were to consider themselves discharged for cause, and that new men would be put to work in their places.

Three men who ran cars yesterday have deserted to the ranks of the strikers, and it is expected that more will follow to-day. The strikers declare that not one of their body has deserted.

The Car Men's Union met last evening and heard encouraging reports from District Organizer Fitzgerald regarding the Fall River situation. He declares that Mayor Coughlin will call a meeting of the union there to-night to vote upon what action they will take to assist their brothers here.

Both the police and the strikers declare that no blame for the rioting last night can be attached to the union men. The trouble was caused entirely by women and boys who stoned cars on Purchase street, between Linden street and the car barns.

Men to Demand Wages Due

The men laugh at the order of President Crapo, that they report for duty at 9:30 o'clock to-day, and declare that they will all go up to the company's office and demand their week's pay, which is due them.

Men in other branches of business are coming to the aid of the striking car men in their own way. Drivers of heavy drays caused much annoyance to the green motormen yesterday by keeping their teams upon the tracks and going slowly for two or three miles, thus making the trolley cars lose time.

A number of non-union motormen and

STRIKERS DENOUNCE ACTS OF VIOLENCE—COUNSEL ORDER

On behalf of the striking street car employes, I wish to declare most emphatically that not one of our men has engaged or will engage in any acts of violence during our controversy with the railway people.

We, most of all, are sorry that attacks have been made upon the cars. As law-abiding citizens our men will continue to do all in their power to prevent any repetition of these acts.

—Statement made to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day by District Organizer Dennis Fitzgerald of the Association of Street Railway Employes of the United States, who is directing the New Bedford strike.

PULAJANES ROUTED, 50 SLAIN, 60 WOUNDED IN BATTLE IN LEYTE

DEADLY FIRE OF COLORED REGULARS HURLS BACK FILIPINO FANATICS.

Special Cable to Boston American.

MANILA, July 25.—A punitive expedition, consisting of a detachment of the Twenty-fourth colored infantry and a company of native constabulary, was attacked to-day by a horde of Pulajanes while on the trail between the towns of Toloss and Damami, Island of Leyte, and a desperate battle took place, resulting in the rout of the fanatics with a loss of fifty killed and more than sixty wounded, while on the American side only one sergeant of the constabulary was wounded.

Captain McMaster of the Twenty-fourth and Major Nevill of the constabulary encountered the Pulajanes after leaving the town of Lubota Bon, and were in pursuit of the natives who cut up the constabulary two days ago, killing Lieutenant Worswick and Scout McBride and twelve men.

Got Wind of Night Attack.

The punitive expedition learned from friendly natives the night before that a large body of Pulajanes was moving north and would attack during the night. The advance guard of the colored troops met what was thought to be a small band of the enemy, and opened fire, retreating in the direction of the main body.

Hearing the shots, Captain McMaster rushed forward with his fifty-five men, and Nevill with fifty native soldiers formed his men into double file, expecting an ambush.

Confident of themselves after the victory of the day before, the Pulajanes swarmed from the jungle, and the engagement became general. A large number of the enemy in the lead tried to rush in upon the troops and overwhelm them by force of numbers, and fight in close action with bolos, but Captain McMaster ordered the regulars to fire by volley, and before the natives could cross the intervening space they were hurled back by volleys from the magazine guns, followed by a steady fire from the constabulary.

Fled in Disorder.

The negro troops separated and the constabulary, in columns of twos, went forward and deployed for the charge. Their slaughter of the leaders had the desired effect, and the Pulajanes turned and fled in wild disorder. The action was quick and sharp, and so deadly was the fire from the men of the Twenty-fourth that the slain and wounded were piled together in the trail.

Although the Pulajanes kept up a desultory fire from the brush while the bolomen tried to rush the troops, there was not a loss among the regulars. A sergeant of constabulary, who was on the point of the advance guard, in an exposed position, was slightly wounded in the exchange of shots.

After the action the troops moved forward cautiously until high ground was reached, and then made preparations to repulse an attack, fearing that the Pulajanes would return in better order with reinforcements during the night.

The last news from Major Nevill stated that he was holding his position, and would remain there during the night unless the scouts found the immediate territory had been deserted by the fanatics. It is probable he will wait for reinforcements, so several companies from the Eighth Infantry which had just arrived in Leyte took the field upon disembarking.

General Allen, commander-in-chief of the constabulary, accompanied the detachment and will personally direct the operations.

Ready to Rush Reinforcements.

Brigadier-General Jesse Lee, commanding the Department of the Visayas, has assured Major-General Leonard Wood that there are sufficient troops in the field, but the transport Kilpatrick is in the bay here with steam up ready to sail for Leyte and the Thirteenth and Sixteenth Infantry regiments in Fort McKinley have been ordered to prepare for the field.

Army circles here are intensely interested in the condition of affairs, and the news of the battle created considerable excitement in the various headquarters.

Major-General Wood, in command of the Philippine division, said to-day that he had no doubt that the fighting would soon be over, expressing confidence in the ability of the Eighth Infantry to quiet the Pulajanes, but he intimated that there would be no lack of troops in Leyte while there were any indications of trouble.

Other officers said that they were not so sure that the Pulajanes would not keep up the fighting in the hope that the tribes in Samara would break out in sympathy.

Governor-General Ide has appealed to the military authorities for a larger force of regulars in Leyte, and the Eighth Infantry was dispatched at once for Iloilo, and an additional battalion of the Twenty-fourth was sent from Camp Bumpus.

Ladrone Chiefs Surrender.

General Allen was intending to take the field in Cebu against the Ladrones there, but changed his plans when he learned that the Ladrone chiefs and forty-eight men had surrendered. Governor Osmena reports that there are no more outlaw bands and that the island is completely pacified.

Students of Philippine affairs among the civil authorities attribute the sudden breaking out of the fanatic bands to the arrest and capture of so many of the old leaders within the past few weeks.

General Gelizardo was supposed to have been killed this year. He, with Julian Molatan, kept the nearby province of Cavite in terror for years. It now appears that there is no actual proof that Gelizardo met his death in jumping over a cliff in Batangas province, as reported.

Molatan, Macario Sakay, Villefuerte, Devega, Carrioa and Natividad have all been captured or have surrendered. They have pleaded not guilty to charges of outlawry in Cavite. These men are the last of the Ladrone chiefs who have any influence with the outlaw bands, and their careers extend back to a time before the American occupation of the Philippines.

With Simon Donovan in Attendance Fenway GRAFT PROBE BEGINS

Dredging Contractor Takes Books to Courthouse To-day to Go Before Grand Jury.

With Chief Engineer Dorr of the sewer department of the city giving evidence, and Contractor Simon Donovan on the rack for an hour before District Attorney Moran, the Fenway graft investigation by the Grand Jury began to-day.

When Donovan arrived at the District Attorney's office he brought with him his books, which he will be given an opportunity to show to the grand jury. He was ushered into the private office of Assistant District Attorney Dennison, and District Attorney Moran went in there with him. They were closeted for an hour, at the expiration of which time Mr. Moran came out and Donovan remained. As the grand jury session began he still sat in Mr. Dennison's office, and it appeared as though he was waiting to be called before the investigating body. He was later excused for the day.

In the meantime Chief Engineer Edgar S. Dorr, head of the sewer department, who assisted District Attorney Asa P. French of Norfolk County in investigating the Fenway graft, Mr. French having been engaged especially for this work, had appeared at the courthouse with an armful of maps and papers, and went into the office of Assistant District Attorney Richardson, where Mr. Richardson talked with him for an hour.

Moran Scores Bailey.

At 11 o'clock the Grand Jury opened its session, and Engineer Dorr at once went before it. In the room were Assistant District Attorneys Dwyer and Richardson.

In connection with the statement by Attorney Bailey, Donovan's counsel, as to the publication of an interview he had with District Attorney Moran, this statement was made to-day by the District Attorney:

"The conversation which Mr. Bailey had in the District Attorney's office was not private. It was publicly known that Mr. Donovan had been summoned to appear before the Grand Jury.

"The District Attorney is a public official. The public has a right to know what its servant, the District Attorney, is doing, and as long as I am District Attorney the public will know what I am doing, except when publicity will interfere with the course of justice.

"Neither Mr. Bailey nor any other attorney can have any private conversation with me. They will be private or not private as I determine.

"If publicity will interfere with the course of justice, the conversation will be private. If publicity will not interfere with the course of justice, I will publish as little or as much as I choose.

Publicity Aids Case.

"The publication of the fact that Mr. Donovan did not appear before the Grand Jury Monday, and that he did not desire to appear before Wednesday, was not such as to interfere with the course of justice.

"On the contrary, I believe that the publicity given to that fact caused both Mr. Bailey and Mr. Donovan to change their minds, for it is evident that any attempt upon the part of Mr. Donovan or his attorney to prevent the District Attorney from examining Mr. Donovan and his books would indicate to the public that there was something in the books which Mr. Donovan and his attorney desired to have concealed from the District Attorney.

"The publicity given to the affair, therefore, has been beneficial to the interests of justice."

STREUB BOY'S FATHER IN CELL AS A WITNESS

GREAT BARRINGTON, July 25.—The postponed inquest into the death of John Streub, the twelve-year-old boy who is believed to have been murdered, and in connection with whose death his father is held as a witness, began to-day.

The opening of the district court was under dramatic circumstances. Mrs. Streub, who had fainted many times yesterday and who had swooned away when her husband was locked up, appeared in the courtroom to-day, pale and trembling. She plainly showed the effect of her terrible ordeal yesterday.

The climax in the case is expected to occur to-day, as, after eight hours of probing into the mystery which surrounds the fate of the boy and the examination of sixteen witnesses, the court officers decided to retain Streub in custody, although they allowed the other members of the family to go home.

Streub was put on the stand at 12:25 o'clock yesterday and was questioned until 1:15, when the court adjourned for luncheon. Streub had luncheon between Chief Smith and Officer Rathbun at Scott's pool room. He was kept in the anteroom under the charge of Officer Rathbun for the rest of the afternoon until the court adjourned for the day.

Boy's Mother Faints.

His wife and fourteen-year-old daughter Annie had a short conversation with him before they left for home and both left the room sobbing. Streub was calm when ushered downstairs by Chief of Police Smith.

Mrs. Streub was on the stand for an hour and fifteen minutes in the afternoon. She fainted repeatedly and had to be restored with stimulants. She was in a state of semi-collapse before she took the stand and was no better at the end of her ordeal.

The daughter, Annie, was less affected, although it was her first appearance in the courtroom. After her examination she was heard to say: "It is easy enough when you tell the truth."

The inquest was private, and Messrs Collins and Giddings conducted it for the Commonwealth before Judge Sanford. Chief Smith, Officers Rathbun and Martin and Sheriff Douglas were present, as well as Selectmen Tuller and Brewer, Lawyer W. Taylor Day and H. L. Wilcox, clerk of the court.

One of the witnesses was left over till to-day's hearing besides Streub, but all except Streub were allowed to go to their homes. The fact that Streub was locked up is considered significant, as Streub is employed as night watchman at the Monument mills.

Other Witnesses Called.

The other witnesses were Medical Examiner Beebe, who was on the stand for about an hour; Joseph Roohan, who found Streub's body; Phil and J. J. Gerard, Nelson Shaw, Mrs. John Wheeler, Mrs. Joseph Adams, Thomas Coleman, Edward S. Buck, Mrs Vincent, Mrs. William Burke and Oras Borer.

Mrs. Joseph Streub had a long conversation with Streub on the morning of Tuesday, July 10, when the boy is thought to have been murdered. Edward S. Buck is proprietor of a saloon where Streub bought two glasses of beer about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and Coleman is his bartender. Mrs. John Wheeler lives across the river from where Streub's body was found, and the elder Streub called there about 5:30 Tuesday morning. The other witnesses presented evidence which the officers had been seeking.

TWO KILLED AT CROSSING

RUTLAND, Vt., July 25.—Running a mile a minute, the Rutland railroad's northbound flier crashed into a buggy driven by Albert J. Bissell yesterday at Eddy's Crossing, instantly killing Mrs. Mattie Whitton and Harry A. Reed, aged thirty-eight and thirty-seven, respectively.

Bissell escaped by jumping, but Reed's body was thrown beside the track, while that of the woman was cut in halves and carried several hundred yards before the train could be stopped. The horse was uninjured and ran away, being caught later in this city.

REVERE BEGINS DRINK CRUSADE

Chief of Police Rhoades of Revere is to-day notifying expressmen who deliver soft drinks to the stands in the State boulevard at Revere that hereafter they must not make any trips on Sundays. This is regarded as the beginning of a crusade against Sunday expressing at Revere.

The Board of Selectmen, at their meeting last evening, took this action and gave Chief Rhoades orders to put a stop to Sunday deliveries of soft drinks. As nothing was said about the Sunday deliveries of ice cream, Chief Rhoades will merely carry out his orders regarding soda and tonic. Small merchants on the boulevard declare that this order will work great hardship, as their stands are not large enough to store away the regular Sunday supply if it is delivered Saturday night.

MAY CALL MILITIA TO QUELL RIOTS AT TROLLEY STRIKE

NEW BEDFORD CAR SERVICE DEMORALIZED

Few Cars Run at Long Intervals and Thousands Walk to Work.

TO BE A FINISH FIGHT

conductors were hit by flying missiles during the trouble on Purchase street. Richard White, Harry Ziegler, motormen, and Harry Donovan, conductor, were forced to leave their cars because of their hurts. All were struck upon the head by missiles thrown by strike sympathizers, among whom were Joseph Maher and the Brouillette boy, who were the only ones arrested.

BIG CROWDS GATHER.

This is the first experience which New Bedford citizens have had with rioting or a street car strike. Crowds began to assemble on the streets and at the car barns early in the evening and as each car was sent out it was greeted with hisses, cries of "scab," and many persons hurled stones, rotten fruit, etc., at the motormen and conductors.

The crowds were made up largely of mill workers, who took every opportunity of expressing sympathy with the strikers. There were fears of bloodshed when the reserves were called out after the arrests were made, as the mob which followed the officers to the police station seemed bent on rescuing the prisoners.

A feature of the street scenes was the presence of many large barges which were pressed into service to carry persons about the city. The drivers of these deliberately got in the way of the trolley cars and evaded all attempts of the police to prevent them from blocking the tracks.

LOOKING UP OBSTRUCTION LAW.

Lieutenant Fay, who has charge of the North End police station, telephoned to Chief of Police Donaghy asking for advice as to how he should act to prevent the barge drivers from blocking the right of way of the few cars which were running. He was told that the law would be looked up on the point, but until then no action should be taken. It is thought that arrests may be made if the interference continues.

One particular instance, most exasperating to the company, was the persistence of a driver in holding his team in the track from Blackmer street to Weld stret, a distance of nearly two miles, on Purchase street. A crowd near the car barn, in sympathy with the strikers, greeted the driver's work with hand-clapping and cheers.

At the meeting of the Central Labor Union it was voted to issue 20,000 hand bills in French and English, calling upon people not to patronize the company's cars. A committee was appointed to look into the street railway franchises to see if there is any way in which they can be broken for failure to run cars on schedule time.

CRAPO WILL FIGHT TO LAST DITCH TO RUN ROAD OWN WAY

President Crapo declares to-day:

"We intend to run our roads as we think best. We will fight for what we believe to be right to the very last ditch.

"I am not able to say what steps we will take to insure service to our patrons to-day. We will run the lines to the best of our ability.

3,000 IN RIOT AT NIGHT CLIMAX TO DAY OF DISTURBANCE

NEW BEDFORD, July 25.—Yesterday's developments closed with a riot in which nearly 3,000 strike sympathizers hurled stones and other missiles at cars returning to the North End barns. Men, boys and women joined in the demonstration, and two arrests were made.

The outbreak occurred at 7:30 in the evening. Superintendent Potter announced that after the 6 o'clock rush hour, when the mills and stores let out, all cars would be withdrawn. Shortly before 7 o'clock the cars on the various lines began their last trips to the barn. They found a big mob waiting for them at the north end of Purchase street. Chief of Police Donaghy, anticipating trouble, had ordered the third relief of policemen to report for duty, as well as the second, and they found plenty to keep them busy.

Cars Badly Damaged.

As the cars came along toward the barn the mob hurled stones and other missiles, smashing skylights and windows, and others doing other damage. Fully 3,000 men, women and children were packed in Purchase street, and the police, without resorting to the use of clubs, were powerless. Two arrests were made, Joseph H. Maher and Arthur Brouillette.

Maher will be charged with stoning a car and disturbing the peace, and Brouillette with stoning a car. Both are mill operatives and have no connection with the street railway.

This disturbance came as the climax to a series of petty demonstrations throughout the day, but which gave the management but little trouble. Street railway officials say they operated twenty-seven cars during the day, more than half of the regular number, but barges operated by the mills and private individuals did most of the business.

Forced to Walk.

Practically all of the mill operatives were obliged to walk to their work in the morning, and as a result the mill officials arranged for barge transportation that took care of the traffic at noon and at night.

The people throughout the city express their sympathy with the strikers, and by a practical boycott of the cars give more substantial evidence of their convictions.

Notwithstanding the rain, thousands walked rather than ride, and cars that were operated were practically deserted.

LEADER OF STRIKERS DECLARES THE MEN DEPLORE VIOLENCE

District Organizer Fitzgerald in an interview says:

"The fight will be continued until every car line in New Bedford is tied up. We [illegible] It will be a fight to a finish. I am as sorry [illegible] have occurred, but I want it understood that the union men have had no part in it."

MAYOR WILL CALL FOR STATE AID IF IT IS NECESSARY

Mayor Thomas Thompson, in a statement given this morning, said:

"The strike has indeed taken a serious aspect. It is my intention to preserve order at all hazards. The police handled the large crowd admirably, and should be given credit for their brave efforts. I do not think that we have any cause to ask for State aid, but if it comes to that I shall not hesitate to take the steps that are for the best interest of the city.

"So far both sides have conducted themselves in a commendable way. The disturbance was caused entirely by outsiders."

STRENGTH FOR TIRED MOTHERS
In a timely dose of Sanford's Ginger. Always healthful, grateful, comforting.

The Strike Situation at New Bedford

Twenty-seven cars running at 8 o'clock to-day.
All cars withdrawn at 9:30 by order of the superintendent.
Twenty cars sent out under police guard.
30,000 compelled to walk to their places of work.
Trolley men employed, 300.
Strikers yesterday, 217.
Strikers to-day, 260.

What the Mayor Says:

"I will call out the State militia if necessary to preserve order. There must be no violence."

What President Crapo Says:

"We will fight this battle to the last ditch. There will be no compromise."

ICE MEN ACCUSED OF GIVING SHORT WEIGHT

SIX NEWTON DRIVERS CALLED TO COURT AS RESULT OF POLICE INVESTIGATION.

Summonses were placed in the hands of Newton officers to-day for the drivers of six ice wagons, owned and operated by the Crystal Lake and Garden City Ice Co. of Newton, G. D. Miller proprietor, for selling ice under weight.

Instructions were also given by Chief of Police Frederick Mitchell to summons G. D. Miller under the direct charge of using scales upon his wagons that had not been tested by the sealer of weights and measures.

The Newton ice crusade is a result of an agitation among residents, who have repeatedly complained against the size of the cakes of ice delivered, as well as the quality.

Proof of Short Weight.

The consumers say that the cakes are thin, impure and underweight, that the drivers are impertinent and frequently refuse to wash the cakes placed in the ice chests.

It was stated that complaint was made to the State House and to the local police simultaneously, but that the local police department was recognized as being entirely able to cope with the situation.

Chief Frederick Mitchell set men at work a week ago to quietly follow the Crystal Lake ice wagons and weigh cakes of ice after they were sold. His men reported that many of them fell under weight, and in six instances cakes weighing not more than eighty pounds each were delivered for 100 pounds.

Selected Six Cases.

From the evidence obtained six cases were found to be so glaring that the chief decided to take them to court at once and leave the other less pronounced cases for future deliberation. Chief Mitchell said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day:

"It is the desire of this department to get at the root of the fraud. The ice business of this city is controlled practically by two companies, Miller's company cutting ice at Crystal Lake and Hatch's at the Longfellow Pond. A third company, controlled by Mr. Howard of Watertown, may sell a little ice in Newton near the Watertown boundary, but it is very little comparatively.

"Our complaints have concerned Miller's company and our investigations have justified those complaints. Patrolmen O'Halloran and Mariner have investigated carefully. The men summoned will appear in court next Saturday morning and answer to the charge of selling ice under weight.

Must Summon Drivers.

"We have no wish to punish the drivers of these wagons if the responsibility rests with the proprietor, yet, under the law governing such criminal complaints, it will be necessary to summon the men who actually delivered the ice. If they shift the responsibility higher up, well and good.

"In the course of our investigations it appeared that each wagon is supplied with scales, and that these scales have not been tested this year by the sealer of weights and measures. The responsibility for that seems to rest directly upon the proprietor of the ice company. I have authorized as many complaints against him as he has wagons bearing untested scales.

"There is a strong sentiment in Newton when 100 pounds or fifty pounds of ice is bought that the purchaser should receive what he pays for. These proceedings do not touch upon the quality of the ice or the washing of it.

"I learn from my men that in the last few days the drivers of the ice wagons have become aware that they were being investigated. One said to a customer that the police were after him and he proposed on that morning to give the woman a 20-cent piece of ice for 15 cents.

"The officers say that the Crystal Lake Ice Company has increased the size of its ice cakes in the last four days, or since the first inkling was obtained that a crusade was being conducted by the police."

WORCESTER ICE TRUST BREAKS LAW

WORCESTER, July 25.—Evidence that the Walker Ice Company and the Independent Ice Company have an understanding or agreement as to prices and customers is accumulating daily. The Massachusetts law is explicit in prohibiting ice dealers from refusing to sell ice to customers at a fair price when so requested and imposes a penalty of a $100 fine for violation.

Despite this fact, and that the city authorities are conducting an investigation, the Walker Ice Company has furnished the authorities with a case of recent date.

Andrew Bell of Bell Bros., confectioners, No. 558 Main street, tells of a violation of the statute in his own case, and says that he presumes he will be punished for talking by a refusal of all the ice dealers to sell him ice.

"In our three places," said Mr. Bell, "we use a little over 3,000 pounds of ice a day, 1,000 at this store, about 1,000 at the Front street store and the same amount at the White city.

"Our ice bill last year amounted to $800, and since then we have been subjected to a raise in price four times by the Independent Ice Company. We were paying last year twelve and one-half cents a hundred, and were then raised to fifteen cents. Later a five-cent raise was made, and still another, bringing the price up to twenty-five cents, and yesterday they jumped the price up to thirty cents.

"This, in addition to what I believe to be short-weight ice, made me desirous of changing dealers.

"So I went yesterday to the Walker Ice Company and told them I would like to buy ice from them.

I made no request that they sell me ice for any stipulated amount a hundred, as I felt that would be useless. I merely told them that I was dissatisfied with the service I was getting and desired to change.

"They asked me from whom I was buying, and I told them the Independent Ice Company. I had about a half-hour's conversation with the manager, and the result was a point blank refusal to sell me ice.

"I was advised to continue dealing with the Independent Ice Company.

"There was no possible excuse for the Walker people refusing me ice, as I pay spot cash for every pound we use, and as ice will cost us this year at least $1,500, our trade is to be desired. The result is that I will have to continue buying of the Independent Ice Company. There are relaly only two companies which consumers who buy large quantities and often have to get a supply in a hurry, can buy from, the Walker company and the Independent company.

"It seems to me it is a pretty clear case of a combination, where one company refuses to sell ice for spot cash and very kindly advises the customer to trade with the other fellow.

"If people came into my store to buy ice cream and I sent them to one of my competitors, it would be pretty conclusive evidence that I had an interest in the other store, or that the ice cream dealers had formed a combine, especially if we had all simultaneously raised the price of ice cream."

Mayor John T. Duggan says that progress is being made in the city's ice probe. Acting City Solicitor John R. Thayer is investigating along certain lines, the Mayor says, and when the desired information is obtained, action will be taken promptly to bring the matter to a focus.

It is understood that District Attorney Taft has instructed Assistant District Attorney E. P. Morgan to look up the law relative to violations by the ice dealers.

FATHER CAUGHT IN EFFORT TO KIDNAP GIRL

A daring attempt to take a girl away from the State school at Clinton, for the purpose, as she declares, of killing her because she married the man she loved instead of the man her father chose, has been frustrated only after a long chase and lively gun play.

Joseph Carboni, the girl's father, and Samuel De Vito, her uncle, are under arrest here. The girl is Amelia Carboni, who, while under release from the institution on probation recently, married the man to whom her father objected. She is only sixteen years of age and, after her marriage, was brought back to the station.

Recently three attempts have been made to get at her by means of saplings placed against the walls of the institution, and to-day the two men under arrest were seen near the spot. They put up a running fight and the girl declares that she will appear against both men, her father and uncle.

1 MAN SAVES 6 GIRLS AFTER BOAT UPSETS

WATERVVILLE, Me., July 25.—A wholesale drowning accident was narrowly averted in East Pond, when a gust of wind overturned a sailboat handled by Walter Webster, throwing the occupants, six girls and the sailor, into the water, and only the quick work of Mr. Webster, who is an expert swimmer, saved the party. He pulled five of the girls up on the keel of the boat. The sixth, Miss Josephine Donnelly, was caught by the sail and only after a hard struggle they were rescued by the occupants of a steam launch.

LION, LEOPARD AND DOGS ALL IN ONE CAGE

"Happy Family" at Paragon Park Like Fulfilment of Prophecy.

IN BOSTOCK COLLECTION

When a lion, a leopard and two dachshunds lie down together the fulfilment of prophecy is well-nigh at hand. But this his come to pass and the strange combination of feline and canine natures seems to be the happiest thing in the world since Noah took a couple of each kind of living thing and sailed away to Mount Ararat in the ark.

"The Happy aFmily," this assortment of animal opposites is called in the Bostock collection at Paragon Park. And happy's the word for all day long the cubs and puppies roll over each other, snap, scratch and bite to their hearts' content. When "The Happy Family" posed for a picture for the BOSTON AMERICAN, two members of the family were missing, for they wouldn't pose well. One is a restless bear cub, eight weeks old. The other is one of a pair of rabbits which were put among the little chaps several days ago.

Rabbit Disappears.

When the rabbits were put in the whole family lay down together, but the next morning one of the rabbits was lying inside of the lion. How soon the other will seek the same warm resting place Robert J. Aginton, the manager, is wondering.

But Paragon, the five-weeks-old baby lion; Nantasket, the three-weeks-old leopard, and Fritz and Hans, the dachshund puppies, get along together just as though Nature had ordained it.

"They're to live together, too, for the rest of their lives," so Manager Aginton declares, and he knows. And Czar, the bear cub, is also to be one of the family, whether he likes it or no. All day long the strange assortment frolic, sport and play as though they were puppies and kittens, but without half the trouble that would take place were this the case.

"That's the way we get our groups," said Mr. Aginton. "To train wild animals to get along and to "do stunts" in captivity it is necessary to start in young and never let up. I've given the care of this combination to Senorita Divali, our pretty Spanish trainer, and she is getting results early. No, we'll never have much trouble with them, for they will never know anything else. Of course, leopards are the most treacherous creatures alive and lions will not be trifled with, but they will get along.

"The dachshunds are stolid and wise and they will be the politicians in the gang and have everything their own way. The bear will mix after awhile when he finds that he's got to stay."

Innocent and Happy.

Each member of the happy family is as innocent as a baby. Of course, the leopard is not particular about being gentle with his claws, and the lion will bite and chew at your finger in a harmless sort of way, but they do these things from sheer force of nature, the habits that have ben born in them from thousands of years of forefathers whose homes were the trees and jungles of Africa.

All eat at the same bowl as yet, and they will for some time. Later the lion and leopard, when grown, will be more exclusive and will snatch their own meat bones at feeding time, and the dogs and the bear will know enough to keep "paws off."

ROBBERS BLOW 18 SAFES IN NIGHT; GET $25,000

BURGLARS IN AUTOMOBILE INVADE ILLINOIS TOWN—TWO ARE CAPTURED.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 25.—Four daring cracksmen blew eighteen safes and stole $25,000 in cash and valuable papers in the heart of this city early to-day. Two were caught, but two escaped in a big automobile, carrying most of their booty with them.

The men, who are believed to have been expert crooks from Chicago, were dressed fashionably, with patent leather shoes and diamonds. The scene of the robberies was the seven-story Brown building, and the men worked all night, blowing open safe after safe with nitroglycerine, in the most daring fashion.

The four men entered the city in a large red touring car and rode around, stopping at a saloon or two. They were apparently men of wealth and positon and behaved quietly. They attracted no attention except by the size and beauty of their automobile.

They evidently had planned the robbery with the greatest care. They stationed their big car in an alley back of the Brown block and disappeared. It is now known that they entered the building and secreted themselves, beginning operations as soon as the building was locked up for the night. Their method in each case was the same. The safe doors were drilled in the most workmanlike fashion, the "soup," as robbers term it, poured in and then exploded with a time fuse.

While the proceeds of the robberies will exceed $25,000 the amount of money secured is not positively known. The insurance companies are as yet unable to account for the bonds that were stolen. Much of the paper was negoitatable. One thousand dollars in cash was found on the two men caught.

EVELYN NESBIT THAW TALKS FOR PUBLICATION FOR FIRST TIME TO VIOLA ROGERS FOR BOSTON AMERICAN

WIFE OF HARRY K. THAW SAYS DIVORCE STORY IS RIDICULOUS

"Why, I Love My Husband," She Says. "At This Time, When He Needs Me Most, Do You Suppose I Would Desert Him?"

By Viola Rogers.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 25.—For the first time since her husband, Harry K. Thaw, was put in the Tombs, awaiting trial for the murder of Stanford White, Mrs. Thaw, the young wife of the accused, has permitted herself to be interviewed by a newspaper.

Yesterday afternoon, in the office of Clifford W. Hartridge, her husband's personal counsel, the wife consented to see me for the AMERICAN, and, as far as she deemed practicable, she talked of the tragedy, its consequences and the present conditions surrounding her and her husband, whose life still is being weighed in the balance.

"In many ways this interview is agreeable to me," said Mrs. Thaw; "first, because my husband (Harry) is willing that I talk to you, but in a way it is hard to talk, for there are so many things which Mr. Hartridge deems inadvisable that I talk about now.

"It is agreeable because I like to talk to a woman, and then there are so many things that have been published that are untrue which I should like to correct, but I suppose I cannot.

"Later I may be able to correct many things which should be corrected. At present the public must be content with what they hear—the truth with the utterly false."

"Will you permit your mothers' letters to stand; do you believe that she was acting in your interest when she wrote to White of you and of Harry Thaw?" I asked. "You know now, as the matter stands, as the world sees it, you must either take a stand against your mother or your husband; which is it?"

There was almost brutality in the question.

The brown eyes clouded, the face became set, the youth was almost gone from the finely-chiselled features.

"Oh, please do not ask me that. I cannot. It hurts. You must know that it hurts. My mother, my husband"—and the face took on an expression that comes when the heart is touched, when there comes the crucial moment, the parting of the ways.

Hardly Knows What "Mother" Means.

"Mother, I do not know what 'mother' means scarcely, but she is my mother; that word even, means much, but I shall say no more of her."

The little girl's eyes, which have brought men to her feet, which have made her pictures known in every studio in New York, were clouded, and her mouth took on a helpless, irresolute expression.

"As for Harry, I love him, and I am working night and day in his interests. Oh, dear, these law offices. What business-like places they are! I am becoming used to cold-looking rooms. The Tombs—think of me in the Tombs to see Harry; think of Harry in the Tombs! Sometimes I think it is a dream; that is, when I hear the music floating out from Sherry's or from Delmonico's, as I sit in my room alone in the Lorraine, a block distant.

"How does Mr. Thaw take it; is he cheerful?" I asked.

Her face lighted up perceptibly.

"Oh, yes, so cheerful and so patient. I sometimes wonder how he remains so; but I try to make him cheerful. He feels that all will be well for him when everybody really knows. Dear me, it is a long, long time to wait for Harry's freedom—months.

Says Divorce Story Is Ridiculous.

"The evening papers state that you have denied the story which came from Pittsburg, in which it is said that you are going to obtain a divorce from Mr. Thaw."

"Does it look like it, after all I have said?" asked the young wife. "That is all nonsense and Harry and I both laughed over the absurdity of such a thing. It would be ridiculous at any time, and at this time, when he needs me most, do you think I would desert him?"

Mrs. Thaw looked as if she felt the question too far removed from fact even to be discussed, and it was her assurance of manner and the frank, straightway look from the big brown eyes that told better than words how she regarded the rumor.

"I cannot feel that anyone can misunderstand," she added, musingly.

"Misunderstand what?" I asked.

"There, there, I did not mean that. Oh, well, misunderstand Harry; that is what I mean. I am sure I can say that. You see, the lawyers are particular; they tell me not to say things, but I would like to talk sometimes. Maybe they will let me later.

"Such a Summer as this is. I never did spend a Summer in town unless I wanted to, but here I must stay, and it has been so hot and lonely. You know, in spite of the fact that I am lonely, I am very busy. I am busy from the early morning until I get home at night, for there is much to do. There are letters to write. There are telephones to answer. There is the daily call on Harry.

Would Like to Be With Harry All the Time.

"I'd be there all the time if I could," she added, parenthetically and seriously. "Then there are the lawyers. I never knew what a lot of things they want you to remember, these lawyers, and it is just like looking into a mirror and seeing everything that you have ever done, after an interview with them.

"But they tell me I have an excellent memory and would make a good witness, and I am glad, for I want to tell the truth and I want only to help Harry."

She clasped her pretty, small hands together in her lap, as a child would do when it promises to be good.

"How is it, Mrs. Thaw," I asked, "that you dress so plainly, so simply, when you are so fond of dress. You have always shown by your pictures such beautiful, luxurious taste, and now when the eyes of everyone are upon you, or would be, you wear the same little brown skirt, the plain sailor hat, the blue and white shirt waist, the black tie, when it seems to me you would want to appear at your best, at your prettiest?"

"I do love pretty clothes—I always have—what woman does not?" she answered. "But I do not think I now should dress as I used. In fact, I do not have the desire to. Harry doesn't care what I wear, so long as I look happy when I see him, and I always do that.

Has Told Real Story Only to Lawyers.

"As for the rest, it is only a curious mob I see each day in front of the Tombs—people who don't know me, but who look at me from idle curiosity. Why should I want to dress for them? I try to dress so that I may not be recognized. In fact, I hate to appear conspicuous at such a time.

"People have said so much and are inclined to criticize me. I sometimes wonder why. For what do they really know after all? I have told none but my lawyers the real story of my life. I shall tell it to no one until such a time as they deem advisable. And then only for just one reason. You know that reason. I love Harry. Love makes anything possible with a woman, doesn't it?"

With true woman's sensitiveness, however, the little wife looked at her waist critically, adjusted her sombre veil and asked, with a bewitching smile:

"Do I really look plain—unattractive? If I thought I looked unattractive I might put on something different. I have a few little gowns which, while they are not conspicuous, are very becoming."

It was like a girl out of school selecting her first "grown gown."

"Queer little girl," I said to myself; "how contradictory, how truly feminine. I do believe, after all, it is a hardship for you to dress in sombre colors once.

Says Model's Life Is a Hard One.

But aloud I commended her good sense and advised her to follow her own good counsel.

"Of all the pictures you have had taken, which do you like best, Mrs. Thaw?" I asked.

"Let me see, there are so many. Harry likes the pictures I have had taken in the long ermine coat as well as any others, and I don't know but what I like them as well as any. The ones with the hood over my head have been liked by most of my friends."

"I rather fancy the one on the rug—the 'Kimono' picture," I added.

"Oh, please, don't; it has been talked about so much," continued Mrs. Thaw, "and there are others that are really so much more attractive as pictures go, you know."

"Are you fond of posing—fond of studio work?" I asked.

"Oh, it used to be interesting, but when one has had thousands of pictures taken and sat for artists so often as I have it gets to be a bore. I never should do it again. There are so many things a woman can do, and that life is a hard one—a very, very hard one."

There was a break in the low-pitched voice; there was a look almost of shame, which overspread the pink and white face. "But I would rather have you talk of something else. You understand, I am sure," she said.

The door opened and Mr. Thaw's counsel, Mr. Hartridge, came into the room where we had had the interview.

"I am sorry, Mrs. Thaw, but you must come," he said; "we have much to do, many papers to go over, and, besides, you must not talk too much."

"All right. I have said only just a few things, and I only did that because Harry said I might."

With a bright smile the wife of Harry Thaw gracefully bade me adieu and went from the offices down to the electric hansom and she and Mr. Hartridge were driven to the Tombs.

THAW TRIAL IS SET FOR OCTOBER 15

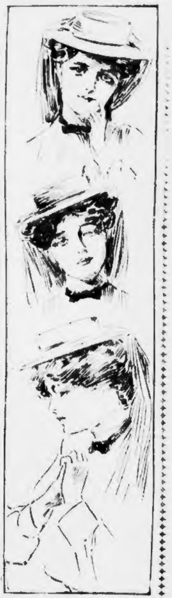
NEW YORK, July 25.—Unless the attorneys for Mrs. William Thaw succeed in having an insanity commission appointed and Harry Thaw declared insane and sent to Matteawan Asylum, the young Pittsburg millionaire will be brought to trial on October 15 for the murder of Stanford White.

Clifford W. Hartridge, counsel for Thaw, has reached an agreement with the District Attorney's office that the Thaw case will be called for trial on that date. The defence in the trial will be emotional insanity, developed by causes which in themselves may tend to show justification. Thaw still insists that his case shall go befor ea jury, and is obdurate to all entreaties to consent to the appointment of an insanity commission, which, if it should find him insane at the present time, would mean that he would not have to stand trial until he recovered.

It is said that former Judge Olcott is now preparing to bring civil action to have Harry Thaw committed to an insane asylum, irrespective of his wishes. This is said to be the reason Detective O'Mara has been so active lately in looking up past events in Thaw's life. If this step is taken, Judge Olcott will in a few days go before the Supreme Court and ask for a commission to inquire into Thaw's sanity. If he is adjudged insane, he will be immediately taken to the asylum.

This interesting photograph was taken while Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, in the first interview given to any newspaper since her husband was locked up in the Tombs, was telling her dramatic story to The American representative yesterday.

Life studies of Mrs. Thaw. By Artist Frederick.



41 DAYS have elapsed since the BOSTON AMERICAN filed with the Attorney-General a formal information and petition that he bring suit to force the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and the Boston & Albany Railroad to obey the law and to abandon the competing trolley lines which they have illegally acquired.

Why does the Attorney-General delay?

LOVERING LOSES $1,400, WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE

Former Husband of Beautiful Elsie Richmond Alleged to Be Slave to Opium Habit.

Troubles are falling thick and fast upon Joseph Lovering, once the heir to a small fortune which was soon spent, an electrical engineer for the Boston Elevated Railroad Company, later a jewelry salesman for a Boston house, divorced husband of beautiful Elsie Richmond (now the wife of Will Stinson, the well-known bicycle rider), and now the husband of Ida Blanchard Sanborn Lovering, who has just sued him for absolute separation and alimony.

Lovering lost $1,400 in a midnight automobile ride two days ago and had just been informed by the police that it could not be found when the last blighting stroke of misfortune, the suit for absolute divorce brought by his second wife, whose home is in Winchester, on the allegations of intemperance and the opium habit, smote him heavily.

Told of Loss of $1,400.

Lovering, it is understood, was at the time when the divorce papers of his second wife were served upon him, preparing to re-marry her in Massachusetts. Their first marriage had taken place at Nashua, N. H., in October 1904, less than two years after he had been divorced by the beautiful Elsie Richmond, and there had been some doubt in Lovering's mind as to the legality of his second venture in the matrimonial state, as the laws of this Commonwealth declare that a marriage of a divorced person performed outside of the State within two years after a degree has been granted shall not be recognized as legal in Massachusetts.

The papers were served upon Lovering in Pemberton square imediately after Chief Watts had informed him that the $1,400 which had disappeared mysteriously in a midnight auto ride in which two young women had been his guests was not to be found. Utterly dejected, Lovering declared that he knew not which way to turn as, he said, that part of the missing money belonged to his employers.

Tower, Talbot, Hiller & Pillsbury, of No. 35 Congress street, the attorneys who have for years been employed by the Sanborn family of Winchester, are bringing the second Mrs. Lovering's suit for absolute divorce and alimony. They will not discuss the case. In her charges, Mrs. Lovering declares that Lovering has not been sober for nine months, and that he is also addicted to the opium habit.

Mr. Lovering, who in November, 1901, married Miss Elsie Richmond, daughter of the former pastor of the Warren Avenue Church, the Rev. William C. Richmond, is a brother to Arthur Lovering, the famous strong man of Harvard. Miss Richmond had been noted from early childhood for her radiant beauty. Just before he wedded her, Lovering had become the heir to $10,000.

Lovering soon went through his small fortune and in 1903, his beautiful wife was granted a divorce on statutory grounds. Mr. Lovering's cross libel was dismissed. Prior to his first wedding, Miss Richmond had acted in minor parts on the stage and had attracted the eye of the great French actor, Coquelin, who urged her to go to France, promising her that she should become famous.

Both Marry Again.

After her divorce, the first wife about a year since married Stinson, the bicycle rider, in Providence. In 1904, Lovering married Miss Sanborn in Nashua, N. H., on account of the divorce laws of Massachusetts. Recently they have been living in Winchester and Mr. Lovering who had left the Boston Elevated was selling jewelry for a Boston firm.

On July 12, in a large French touring car, Lovering called at a private house at Nantasket and took two young women, guests there, for a ride. It was a merry party which dined in Boston that evening, and at 2 o'clock the next morning they all appeared at the Hotel Trafalgar in Massachusetts avenue, where a suite of adjoining rooms were secured.

Lovering paid the bills from a roll which he said contained $1,400, and he also pealed off a good sized bank note for his chauffeur. A little later what was left of the roll disappeared. At Lovering's insistence the police were notified and one of Chief Watts's inspectors was put on the case.

Everyone in the party was searched and examined, but not a trace of the money was forthcoming. The management of the hotel searched for hours in vain, and day after day Mr. Lovering called upon Chief Watts in hopes of recovering what remained of the roll. Up to last night nothing had been heard of it, nor could a clue be found.

Served with Divorce Papers.

It was while he was leaving the police at his last visit that the last blow descended upon Lovering, and he was served with the divorce papers got out by his present wife. Deputy Sheriff Robert E. Maguire served them.

Mrs. Lovering is living with relatives in Winchester, and Mr. Lovering has been staying with a relative at Marblehead. It was said at the Hotel Trafalgar last night that the two young women who were with Mr. Lovering conducted themselves with propriety, and that if Mr. Lovering had shown any signs of intoxication when he registered he would not have been allowed to stay there for the night.

TO GET NAMES OFF TICKET.

NEW YORK, July 25.—It is stated that the lawyers for the four members of the International Policy Holders' Committee whom the management of the Mutual Life Insurance Company put on the administration ticket will serve Superintendent of Insurance Kelsey with a mandamus to compel him to remove their names from the ticket.

DIVER WILL SEEK BODY OF GIRL IN POND

Failing in This, Water Will Be Drained in Search for Missing Winnie Goodell.

BELCHERTOWN, July 25.—Determined to find the body of Winnie M. Goodell, if it lies on the bottom of Upper Pond, the services of a Boston diver have been engaged in another effort to clear the mystery of the disappearance of the daughter of Postmaster Goodell of Dwight. Should the diver's search be unavailing the pond will be drained.

Yesterday's developments strengthen the theory of accidental drowning. The possible elopement of the girl was exploded by the news that the girl married to Harry T. Moore at Holyoke was Miss Cora M. Cutting and not Miss Goodell. It was thought at first that the bride in this wedding was the missing Dwight girl.

The pond, where the girl's boat was found, was dragged from one end to the other without yielding any trace of the missing girl, but State Detective Hodges, undismayed by lack of success, still believes the body will eventually be found in the pond.

The mysterious horse and wagon which were in the woods near the pond on the day of the disappearance of Miss Goodell have been traced. The team proved to be the property of a person in no way connected with the disappearance of Miss Goodell.

SANDBANK CAVE-IN KILLS SMALL BOY

FAIRFIELD, Me., July 25.—While playing in the sand, Freddie Alley, aged six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alley, was killed by the bank caving in and smothering him. His companions were unable to tell exactly where he lay so great was the amount of sand covering him. An hour was consumed before he was finally found.

SECRETLY WED IN RAINSTORM

MALDEN, May 25.—Congratulations are being showered on Mr. and Mrs. George Herbert McLellan, who were secretly married by Rev. Albert Danker at the rectory of St. Luke's Church. The pair, accompanied by the best man and bridesmaid, walked to the rectory in a heavy rainstorm, and all reached the minister's house drenched to the skin.

KILLED BY FALL FROM STAGING

NORTH ADAMS, July 25.—A staging on which Daniel Berger of North Adams and Charles Williams of Blackinton were working, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, gave way and the men fell sixty feet.

Berger died in the hospital. Williams had a fracture of the skull and broken ribs and arms. He may die.

CROWDS WHICH THRONG WONDERLAND AMAZED BY CLEVER ACTING HORSE

To-day Last This Week for Boston Sunday American Free Tickets.

Balloon Sensation, Which Includes Four-Parachute Drop. Promised To-night.

A horse who is an actor, who knows his part, who never forgets his lines, would be lost without his "props" the same as any other actor, who can even prompt a fellow-actor, who knows the minute anything goes wrong or any hitch occurs, who "makes up" for his part conscientiously, is "Knott Head," Wild Bill Kennedy's trained Indian pony, which "goes lame" every time the Wild West company reproduces Artist Frederick Remington's great water hole scene at Wonderland.

"KNOTT HEAD," THE ACTING HORSE AT WONDERLAND AND MEN WHO ASSIST IN PERFORMANCE.

On the right is William H. Kennedy, the sleeping cowboy, and on the left "Alkali Ike" Miller of Arizona, the horse thief, as they appear during the act which interests and amazes Wonderland visitors.

"Knott Head" is a leading performer in the famous horse thief act also. It is he who is stolen from the sleeping cowboy, impersonated by Wild Bill Kennedy himself, usually, while "Alkali Ike" Miller of Arizona acts the part of the sneaking, crawling horse thief.

Actually, when things don't go quite right, "Knott Head" seems to realize any hitch fully as soon as his fellow actors, the cowboys and Indians. He has been known to go as far as prompting when some mistake is made.

"I couldn't get along for a minute without 'Knott Head,'" said Kennedy to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "Why he is as much a part of the show as I am. Haven't you watched him in the water-hole act? He's got that down so fine that the moment the gates are thrown open and the Indians rush out and begin to fire upon the unsuspecting cowboys as they are grouped around the pretended water hole, old 'Knott Head' will sometimes get shot in the foreleg before a gun has been aimed at him."

Is a Great Favorite.

"Knott Head" is, of course, a favorite with every member of the company, from William H. Kennedy, the owner and manager of the Indian Wild West Congress, to the smallest pappoose in the assortment. He is tractable and so intelligent that once a thing has been taught him, and it is not hard to do this, he never forgets nor does he ever need whipping or talking to, as most trained animals require once in awhile.

"I have only to watch 'Knott Head' that he doesn't act too soon. He knows all the cues better than I do," says Kennedy. "Why, we have to hustle to keep up with him when he takes part. When 'Alkali Ike' starts in to steal 'Knott Head' in the horse thief act, haven't you seen the pony turn his head around and watch him?

"If 'Ike' puts on any new 'business' in his stunt, 'Knott Head' will look at him in astonishment, and I have actually known him to paw the ground impatiently, as though saying in horse-talk, 'Hurry up, here, you old blockhead, and steal me!'

"He would be the most obliging critter in the world for a real horse thief to make off with, as it looks to the audience, but I wouldn't advise any green hand to try it. 'Knott Head' is not a thick head.

"You want to know how he got that funny name? Well, it was when he was a colt, several years ago. We were wintering on my ranch at Perry, Oklahoma, and the horses were given the run of a big enclosure. I mean the horses we care most for. This chap was a colt and as frisky and restless as ever you saw.

How He Got His Name.

"He wouldn't be still for a moment all day long, and he was as inquisitive as an Indian squaw. One day we found the colt with his head caught between two rails of a fence. He had been trying to see something in the next field, and he was caught. Restless as ever, he had been twisting his head around until it had got a great bump right behind the left ear.

"It was that bump that gave 'Knott Head' his name. The cowboys dubbed him 'Knott Head' right off, and it has stuck, though the bump has long since disappeared. A good jolt sometimes cures a horse as well as a man of bad habits, and after 'Knott Head' got that welt on his head he settled right down, and ever since then he has been one of my standbys."

To-day is the last day this week for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets at Wonderland. That they will be pouring in by the thousand the officials of the great pleasure resort and the busy ticket-takers know full well. As the popularity of Wonderland grows, BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets are being more and more made use of.

Several basketsful of the free tickets were received on Monday and yesterday by the ticket takers, and they are counting on fully as many more to-day. Wednesday is always popular with Wonderland visitors, as it is the mid-week day and fills in between Sunday visits.

Balloon Sensation To-night.

To-night Professor Joseph LaRoux promises the crowds the greatest balloon sensation yet. He is arranging to give a four-drop parachute performance. His pretty wife, Mrs. Tiny LaRoux, and Miss Amelia Garvin of South Boston are to make the ascension and then each will make a double parachute drop when the big air ship is 6,000 or 7,000 feet above the earth.

Just after the balloon sensation the great free circus in the lagoon enclosure starts up. This performance, fully as good as many for which high prices for admission are charged, is absolutely free to the many thousands of Wonderland visitors who will undoubtedly be present to-night.

All of Wonderland's other attractions will, of course, be in full operation. The gates of the great resort are open at noon, and oftentimes hundreds of people are standing around waiting for the ticket takers to be in their places. Verily Wonderland is popular with the people.

MAINE IN FEAR OF ICE FAMINE

Special to the Boston American.

PORTLAND, Me., July 26. Portland is on the verge of an ice famine. The supply in the ice houses has run low and there is no prospect of obtaining enough to supply the people with ice for the Summer. About one-half of Maine's Winter crop was shipped to New York and Philadelphia. The American Ice Company has only 15,000 tons left, and local dealers will find it impossible to obtain ice when their own houses give out. The condition is general throughout Maine.

The industry of cutting ice has dwindled and no revival is expected on account of the trust rule. There were 550,000 tons cut last Winter and the amount should have been 1,500,000 tons. Market facilities are controlled here and throughout Maine by the trust. If the famine causes suffering, legal steps may be taken to compel the trust-controlled companies to show cause why they should supply favored places with ice and exclude the five and ten-cent customers.

TWO SICK BABIES CRY THEIR EYES OUT BECAUSE "LUCKY" IS LOST

WILLIE FAY
"LUCKY"
MARIE FAY

TWO LITTLE INVALIDS AND LOST DOG THEY ARE ANXIOUS TO SEE AGAIN

"Lucky" Is Their Pet Dog and Played with Them Every Day Before They Had Scarlet Fever.

If anyone sees "Lucky" please send her home and help the kids get well.

"Lucky" is a thoroughbred female Boston terrier, the property of P. W. Fay of No. 38 Moreland street, Roxbury, who is summering at the Willowmere Cottage, Winthrop Beach.

Mr. Fay thinks that "Lucky" is his dog. As a matter of fact, however, "Lucky" is the personal and particular pet of Willie and Marie Fay, aged eleven and six respectively and now just convalescing from scarlet fever.

And thereby hangs a sad little story about a lost doggie and two sorrowful, sick kids.

When the Fays went to the beach "Lucky" went along, too, of course. She romped about the beach with the kids, was teased and petted by them alternately and was having the time of her doggish life. You couldn't see the kids without "Lucky" and it was a pretty sure thing that, if you came across "Lucky" anywhere, the kids were not far off.

One day recently the kids went under the weather. The doctor said "scarlet fever." Forthwith an ambulance was called and the kids were hustled back to the city and home to Moreland street where they could be cared for better than at the beach. In the rush and hurry and worry no one thought about "Lucky" for a while.

The next day "Lucky" moped disconsolately about the beach cottage. She would run up to kids' room, nose about, whine dolefully and ask in dog language: "Where are they?" She was petted and given extra choice bits to eat, but these didn't make up for the kids' disappearance in "Lucky's" faithful mind.

She would run to the trains at Winthrop Beach station, gaze up and down the platform, dart to and fro toward different youngsters, smell of them and then go away in disgust.

Finally she disappeared and she hasn't been seen since. She may have been stolen. She may have boarded a train and tried to get into Boston. She may have left home in sorrow at the absence of her friends. But she has gone.

To make matters worse, the kids are just past the crisis of the disease and, if nothing goes wrong, will be well in a few weeks. But they want "Lucky." They ask for her every day and are worrying their poor little selves about the disappearance of the dog.

If anyone has "Lucky," an eighteen-pound female Boston terrier, one year old, with uncropped ears, return her to Willowmere Cottage, Winthrop Beach, or to No. 38 Moreland street, Roxbury and give the kids a good fighting chance to get well again.

DENY TOUR BY ROOSEVELT

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 25.—Emphatic denial was made at the executive office today of the story that President Roosevelt is contemplating a speechmaking tour through Pennsylvania this Fall.

According to the story, the Executive promised Senator Penrose that he would speak at Pittsburg and Philadelphia from the same platform as Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican candidate for Governor.

The only addresses to be made by the President in Pennsylvania, according to Secretary Loeb, are at Harrisburg and York on October 4, the day he attends the dedicatory exercises at the State capitol.

Neither of these speeches will be of a political nature, and the statement that the President is to make them to "help out the machine ticket" is characterized as "small politics" by the President's friends.

No visitors were received at Sagamore Hill, and Secretary Loeb says none is expected for several days.

BOSTON MAN FALLS FROM CANOE; DROWNS

EFFINGHAM FALLS, N. H., July 25.—Joseph Connors, aged sixty, a resident of Boston, was drowned in Effingham Bay yesterday by the overturning of a canoe. His son, Charles, and his son-in-law, Ralph Marsh, who were in another canoe some distance away, saw him upset but were unable to save him.

REPUDIATES FPISCO LOSS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 25.—It was announced yesterday that, taking advantage of an earthquake clause in its policies, the Phoenix Royal Insurance Company of Vienna, which carried about $2,500,000 of insurance in this city, has decided not to pay any loss growing out of the conflagration.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE $1,000 BRIBE OFFER

LOWELL, July 25.—A tremendous sensation has been caused here by the flat accusation of Alderman W. H. Dodge that a representative of New England Telephone Company tried to bribe with an offer of $1,000 another member of the Board of Aldermen to vote against the Merrimac Valley Telephone Company's franchise.

Alderman Dodge declares he is going to take action to-day to lay the matter before the Middlesex Grand Jury.

Alderman W. J. Hayes, who admitted that he was offered $1,000 by a business man to vote against the franchise, says he refused the bribe; also that the man who offered him the money was not an officer or employe of the New England Telephone Company. The company, through its attorneys, has written to Mayor James B. Casey demanding that the matter be thoroughly investigated.

The whole matter has stirred the business and political circles of the city as they never were before.

Mayor's Veto Sustained.

The Merrimac Valley Telephone Company is an "independent" corporation, organized in opposition to the New England Company, which has been the single company operating here. The "independent" asked for a location and the Board of Aldermen voted recently to grant it. Mayor Casey vetoed the grant.

At a stormy meeting of the board last night the veto of the Mayor was sustained by a vote of 6 to 3. Alderman Dodge, who had voted for the franchise all along, fought against the veto, but in vain. Some members, including Alderman Hayes, who had previously favored the independent franchise, changed their minds and the veto was sustained.

Then Alderman Dodge rose and said:

Charge of Bribery.

"There is one alderman in this chamber who told me, before three witnesses, that he had been approached by a representative of the New England Telephone Company and offered $1,000 for his vote.

"At the last meeting he voted to admit the independent company, but he has voted to-night to sustain the Mayor's veto, and I will carry the matter before the Grand Jury to-morrow morning."

The chamber was in an uproar immediately, members rising to demand recognition from the Mayor. The latter recognized Alderman Hayes, who said:

"It is true that I was approached by a man with an offer of $1,000 to change my vote. I stand here to-night for the people's interest, and, although I changed my vote since the last meeting, I can honestly say that I never received one cent from anyone on the question of this franchise."

Admits Offer of $1,000.

Alderman Dodge reiterated his intention to take the matter up to the grand jury, and the meeting was adjourned amid much confusion. After the meeting Alderman Hayes said in the corridor:

"I was approached Saturday evening, July 14, in my place of business by a business man of Lowell and offered $1,000 to change my vote on the telephone franchise. I refused the offer. The man is not an officer nor employe of the New England Telephone Company. I do not care to give the name of the man who made the offer, which was made in the presence of two witnesses.

"The man who made the offer called at my house and was told by my wife he would find me at my place of business. I did not take any money and voted to-night in accordance with the wishes of a majority of the telephone company's subscribers."

Demand Investigation.

Lawyers Richard Richardson and John M. Weir, representing the New England Telegraph and Telephone Company, wrote and delivered this letter to Mayor Casey last night:

"We have been informed that Alderman William J. Hayes at a meeting of the Board of Aldermen to-night, stated in substance that he had been approached by a representative of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company and was offered the sum of $1,000 to vote against the granting of the location to Merrimac Valley Independent Telephone Company.

"In the strongest possible language we deny that any representative of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company offered Alderman Hayes any sum of money or any other consideration whatsoever to influence his vote upon these or any other questions. We respectfully demand that you cause an investigation to be made of this charge."

$200,000 IN BARN LEFT UNGUARDED

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 25.—The Adams Express Company officials were greatly alarmed at the disappearance of one of their wagons containing $200,000 in currency and spent the night searching the city until it was found safely in the city stables where it had been placed by the police, who had arrested the driver for disregarding the officer's warning.

The officer fired a shot and Harry Cripps, the driver, thinking him a robber, fled. He was caught, arrested and fined $1 in court.

WOMAN LEPER MAY BE FREED

WAREHAM, July 25.—The case of Mrs. Isabel Barros, the woman leper at Penikese Island, who gave birth to a healthy child last March and is in a fair way to absolute recovery from leprosy, is causing much speculation in medical circles.

She will ultimately be released if her present indications of permanent cure continue to prevail.

Mrs. Barros' husband, who was committed to the Taunton Insane Asylum and later released, is anxiously awaiting her dismissal that she may return to him.

ATE TOADSTOOLS FOR MUSHROOMS, IS DEAD

George W. Sterling, father of Alice Sterling, who was murdered in Savin Hill about eleven years ago, died early to-day at his home at No. 17 Hancock street, Dorchester, as the result of eating toadstools that he had mistaken for mushrooms. Several days ago Sterling went to Holbrook and spent several hours gathering what he supposed were mushrooms. These he brought home and had them cooked. A few hours after eating them he was taken ill, and the physicians pronounced his intense pains due to poisoning from the food. The Sterling girl was murdered in 1895 by Angus C. Gilbert, who was hanged for the murder in Charles street jail.

ELOPED WITH QUINCY GIRL, IS ARRESTED

Duncan Cameron and 15-Year-Old Marguerite Smith Found in Elizabeth, N. J.

MOTHER GETS WARRANT

QUINCY, July 25.—The Quincy officers will take out requisition papers at the State House to-day for Duncan Cameron, who eloped last Sunday with Miss Marguerite J. Smith, and is now under arrest in Elizabeth, N. J. The warrant charges the young man with abduction, as the young lady whom he desired to make his wife is barely fifteen years of age. Miss Smith is very mature for her age and passes easily for at least eighteen.

The neighbors think that the girl is madly in love with Cameron and went with him willingly, but her parents assert that such is not the case. The girl's mother feels sure that Cameron has a powerful influence over the girl and forced her to accompany him.

The courtship dates back two years, when Cameron first went to work for the Fore River Ship Building Company and boarded with the Smiths. He showed a marked partiality for the child, who was at that time but thirteen years old. She reciprocated the affection and the couple were together continually. The mother objected to any marriage, but Cameron claimed several times that he would marry her or no one else would.

CHILDREN'S PARTY AT MONPONSETT

The ladies at the Monponsett Summer resort have arranged a garden party on a grand scale to be held at Hotel Monponsett Saturday, July 28. Small children will be entertained from 3 to 6 p. m. There will be a drawing contest, parading with flags, district school, barnyard concert, prize sliding, fishing games and other numerous games in which the little ones are interested. Numerous booths for refreshments, flowers, gypsies, etc., are to be erected. There will be a grand ball at the hotel pavilion and a variety of amusements for grown persons to last from 8 to 12 p. m. Guests from all the surrounding towns and Summer resorts as well as from Boston are expected.

FREE FIGHT ENDS PICNICS ON ISLAND

PORTLAND, Me., July 24.—Because of a free fight started by two women in a party which came to House Island, the government quarantine station, on the yacht Sylvia Sunday, the authorities have forbidden picnics on the island in future.

WOMAN SAVED; BUT TWO LIVES MAY BE LOST

Though saved from death at the High street railroad crossing in West Medford by the quickness and vigor of two newsboys, whose shouts warned in time the engineer of a locomotive that was almost upon her, it is feared that Mrs. Walter Pattchet will die from the nervous shock and injuries she received in twice falling on the rails, and that another life will go out with hers.

Last night three physicians worked over Mrs. Pattchet at the home of her mother, Mrs. George Priggen, on Cottage street, West Medford, and so critical did they find her condition that a message was sent to the husband in Beverly, summoning him to her bedside. Mrs. Pattchet's physical condition at the time of the accident was such that serious results followed, and her life is despaired of.

The heroes of the affair are two little West Medford newsboys, Harry Sheldon and Ray Brisbin. Selling papers near the station at the time the 7 o'clock train for Boston arrived, they saw Mrs. Pattchet alight and start to cross the tracks ahead of the locomotive. At that instant the engineer started his big machine and it began to move, gaining speed at each stroke of the pistons.

Mrs. Pattchet's foot slipped and she fell upon the track. She arose, tripped on her skirt, and fell again. The newsboys yelled and the engineer, hearing the shouting, looked down and saw the woman. With one movement he threw over the throttle and jammed on the air brakes. The train stopped instantly and the boys half dragged, half assisted Mrs. Pattchet from the rails.

She was able to walk to her mother's home. Her condition took a sudden turn for the worse later in the day and it is feared that the death of both a mother and babe will follow.

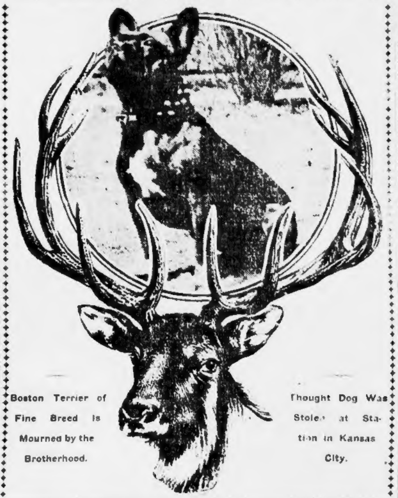
PEGGIE, MASCOT OF ELKS, IS MISSED FROM TRAIN



Boston Terrier of Fine Breed Is Mourned by the Brotherhood.

Thought Dog Was Stolen at Station in Kansas City.

REGGIE, ELKS' MASCOT.

"Peggy" is lost, strayed, or most likely stolen, somewhere out in the wide, wide West.

Who is "Peggie"?

"Peggie" is a genuine, full-blooded, very aristocratic Boston terrier of feminine persuasion and she is the official mascot of the lodge. She is the property of Martin Sullivan, the costumer at No. 732 Washington street.

This was "Peggie's" third Elks' convention. She is an extraordinarily bright dog. In fact, she has a preternatural sagacity that is almost uncanny. She has been known to bark at a stranger till she happened to see an Elks' badge on him.

News of the absence of "Peggie" was received to-day in a telegram from Kansas City which said that "Peggie" had disappeared. The Elks are on their way home. It is likely that someone in the Kansas City depot stole her.

LOST FISHERMEN BROUGHT TO PORT

Joseph Campbell and Joseph Telles, the two fishermen who were lost in the fog on the South Shoals by the fishing schooner Henrietta G. Martin, arrived in Boston to-day, both having been picked up by passing schooners.

TRIES TO KILL GIRL; WOUNDS THREE OTHERS

NEW YORK, July 25.—In an attempt to revenge himself on his sweetheart, Theresa Lodditi, a girl of eighteen, who had jilted him, Salvatore Deve fired four shots at her to-day as she left her home, No. 147 West One Hundredth street, but he was such a poor shot that the bullets went wild and seriously injured three other people. One of them will die.

Deve was standing a short distance from the girl's home when she came out. Drawing a revolver he ran toward her, shouting, and fired four shots in quick succession.

Deve's first bullet struck Abraham Nefsky, of No. 37 Varick street, in the right side of the abdomen.

Cologerico Faraco ran from his barber shop at No. 129 West One Hundredth street at the first shot. Deve, according to the police, then turned his revolver toward Faraco and fired, wounding him in the right side. Faraco fell.

Elizabeth Diaglan, a girl of twenty-one, who was coming up the North side of the street, where the firing was taking place, received Deve's next bullet in the left leg, and she too fell.

Deve then fired a fourth shot at his fleeing sweetheart, but missed the second time. She was coming down the street, screaming, and sought refuge in the home of a friend nearby. When the police looked for her she had disappeared.

As the shots rang out on the street Sergeant Devery, a brother of "Big Bill" Devery, was just being relieved from duty in the West One Hundredth street station. He ran out of the station, followed by Roundsman Watts and Patrolman Short and chased Deve, who, after firing his fourth shot, took to his heels.

After running about fifty yards, and seeing that Sergeant Devery was gaining on him, Deve turned, and, levelling his revolver at Devery, fired.

But the fifth cartridge missed fire and Deve again started to run. Devery made a flying leap and landed on his man, bearing him to the sidewalk.

BANQUET NEW CHIEF OF A. O. H.

Matthew Cummings, the newly elected national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, is to be given a reception and banquet in Woods Hall, Neponset, to-night by 500 brother members of the A. O. H. Divisions 26, 31, 35 and 76, all of Dorchester, will be represented among the hosts.

President Cummings is due to arrive home from Saratoga to-night. He will be met at the Harrison Square Station at 7:30 o'clock and escorted to Woods Hall, where the banquet, with music and speaking, will follow. The general committee in charge includes President John J. Daley of Division 31, President Henry R. Beddington of Division 26, President Edward Coffey of Division 35 and President Joseph P. Walsh of Division 76.

SUNDAY AMERICA

CONSUMPTIVES PARTY TO-NIGHT

The annual garden party for the Free Home for Consumptives, which has been seven times postponed this Summer on account of rain, will take place to-day and to-night if the rain only holds off long enough.

The fair members of the Young Ladies' Charitable Association, which is giving the party, will make a desperate effort to-day to carry out their plans when the weather man isn't looking. They thought they were going to yesterday. The tables were brought out on the spacious grounds of the Home on Quincy street, Dorchester. The decorations were put up. Then, down came the rain. Tables, chairs and decorations were hastily whisked back into the Home and, for the seventh time, the party had been put off.

To-day they have been brought out again and another brave effort will be made to carry out this worthy charity.

"WORST ECZEMA" DOCTORS EVER SAW

Spread Rapidly Over Body—Limbs and Arms Had to Be Bandaged and Scalp Looked Dreadful—Suffered Untold Misery for Three Years—Better in Two Months

MARVELOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when he was four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. We had all the doctors around us and some from larger places, but no one helped him a particle. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I had to bandage his limbs and arms; his scalp was just dreadful. I used many kinds of patent medicines before trying the Cuticura Remedies,—all to no avail.

"A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I consented, when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time, and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies; the Cuticura Soap helped as well as the Ointment. He was better in two months; in six months he was well; but I gave him the Cuticura Resolvent one year,—using twelve bottles, I think,—and always used the Cuticura Soap for bathing, and do now a good deal. He was four years old before he was well, and his skin became perfectly fair when cured. I give you permission to publish this letter for I am always glad to do good when I can. I think I have told you all there is necessary to tell." Mrs. R. L. Risley,

Physicians Say Sawyer Died Instantly in Crash of Ruins.

Special to the Boston American.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, July 25.—While 200 Italian workmen are hard at work searching for the three bodies still believed to be underneath the ruins of the Amsden Block, which collapsed on Monday, and Company E of the Sixth Regiment has relieved the Ninth Regiment militia who were guarding the place, the inquiry into the causes of the accident is beginning.

Fred Cunningham, a painter, and two Italians are supposed to be buried in the debris. The search is progressing as rapidly as safety will warrant. The eight victims in the hospital are reported to-day as doing well.

State inspectors have visited the ruins and taken portions of cement and brick for examination, as well as studying the position and condition of the still standing rear wall. An inquest into the accident is likely to be begun to-morrow before Judge W. A. Kingsbury of the District Court. At the same time District Attorney Sanderson of Middlesex County will be asked to investigate, to determine whether there is anything in the circumstances surrounding the disaster calling for the attention of the grand jury.

Twelve Known Dead.

With the finding of the body of Henry L. Sawyer, one of the town's best known business men, in the ruins, the number of known dead reached twelve. It is feared that at least two more bodies are hidden beneath the heaps of brick, cement and twisted steel. Fred Cunningham, a painter, and Villi Onset are still missing. Searching parties are constantly at work, and will continue until every inch of the place has been examined.

The body of Mr. Sawyer was discovered at 8 o'clock last evening, buried a dozen feet under iron girders and cement blocks. His head was nearly severed from the body, and many bones were crushed by the tremendous weight that had fallen upon him. His shoulder rested upon the open grated door of the boiler. His neck lay across one steam pipe, while another had pressed down across his throat.

For five hours, at intervals, the searchers had heard tappings upon the steam pipe, and had worked so rapidly as the unstable condition of the building would allow to get at Sawyer, whom they knew was at work on the boiler when the building collapsed. Many hours before they reached him the tapping ceased.

It is believed that during the first hours after the accident Sawyer was comparatively safe, the weight of cement above him being held by the big steam pipe above him. During that time he signalled to the rescuers.

BODY PINNONED FAST.

When found, his body was so held that he could not have moved hand or foot, indicating that his position when he was tapping on the pipe must have been much different. It is supposed that during the five hours that he signalled for assistance he was unhurt but imprisoned, and that some sudden shifting of the heap of cement and bricks—probably caused by the later falling of walls—had overcome the resistance of the pipes and crushed him to death. Experts who viewed the remains and the place where they were found believed that when death came to Mr. Sawyer, it came with merciful swiftness.

It took the militiamen and laborers three hours to free the body from the wires, pipes and weights that held it down. Then the ambulance bore it away. Mrs. Sawyer, at her Clinton street home, was almost relieved when the news was borne to her that death had probably been instantaneous. She had feared that her husband had been slowly tortured.

The men who are now searching are handicapped by the fact that the selectmen will not allow the rear wall to be torn down, desiring to use it as evidence as to the cause of the disaster.

Chester Nicholson, the carpenter, who lies at the hospital with a broken back as the result of the disaster, has revealed its cause. He declares that one of the big girders was found to be twisted and warped and he was ordered to cut away the cement so that it could be replaced by a new one. Wooden supports were used while the men were awaiting the arrival of the new girder, and this brought additional weight upon the third floor, which collapsed.

Walls Are Swaying in Wind.

Beside the rear wall, which is allowed to stand as evidence of the cause of the disaster, the front and side walls of the ruins are swaying in the wind to-day. Their collapse is only a matter of hours. No one is allowed within a hundred feet of the ruins, except the searching party.

George M. Amsden, the owner of the building, is confined at his home, 16 Beach street, with his injuries. He was pinned in the street by the falling floors, and is delirious at times. He has no knowledge of the extent of the catastrophe, nor does he know of the large number of workmen killed and maimed. Owing to his age it is feared he will suffer a collapse.

SAN FRANCISCO FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY QUITS

Announcement was made to-day by the Boston agents of the Home Fire and Marine Insurance Company of San Francisco that the company has notified them to discontinue writing policies.

This is the result of the tremendous losses the company suffered as a result of the San Francisco earthquake and fire. Their loses were estimated at approximately $1,200,000. In Boston the company has policies for over one million dollars, with premiums aggregating $15,000 a year, being returned by the Boston agents, C. W. Kellogg of No. 70 Kilby street, the Eastern manager, and O'Brien & Russell, of No. 108 Water street.

Policyholders Protected.

Notice was received to discontinue the writing of policies by Mr. Kellogg on Friday night. He immediately notified the other Boston agents. Before the close of business on Friday night, every policy had been transferred to other companies, so that all Boston holders were protected.

The Home Fire and Marine Insurance Company of aSn Francisco was incorporated under the laws of California in 1864, and was considered one of the best companies on the coast. It has been doing business in this State for many years. The insurance taken in Boston covered risks on dwelling houses and prosprty, as well as on stores and business establishments.

O'Brien and Russell, the Boston agents, made the following statement to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day:

"On Friday we received notice to discontinue writing policies in the Home. We imediately took steps to transfer all of the Home policies which we had written into other companies which we represent, and within a short time after the notice had been received every policy holder had been protected.

Stopped by Litigation.

"Up to date we have been unable to learn here in Boston just what is the status of the Home company. Whether they will have to discontinue business permanently or not we do not know now."

The cause to which is attributed the notice to discontinue writing policies is the litigation which is going on at the present time in San Francisco on the question whether companies are liable for losses sustained by the earthquake.

FANNING BEE RETARDS BAN

The greatest fanning bee of the season took place at the Parker House last night, where Mike Regan, the "King of the Rooters" entertained President Ban Johnson of the American League and a party of friends at dinner.

Besides the host and the guest of honor, there were present Pat Hurley, of Worcester; Fred Doe, the New England League magnate; Jessee Burkett, the old ball player, now chief owner of the Worcester Club; Melville E. Webb, Jr., T. H. Murnane, J. C. Morse, F. P. O'Connell, Peter Kelly and Charley Power.

Everybody had something to say on the subject of baseball, and Mr. Johnson remarked after it was all over that he had spent a most enjoyable evening. He was to have left town last night, but the fanning bee put him in such good humor that he decided to remain over to-day.

MAYOR TEARS UP CLEVELAND CAR TRACKS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 25.—War was begun on the Cleveland Electric Railway Company by the city this morning, when a force of 500 men were sent to tear up the tracks of the railway company in Fulton street between Lorain street and Franklin Circle.

The force of city employes was directed by Mayor Tom Johnson and Chief of Police Keeler, and they were protected by police.

The action of the city was a surprise to the railway company.

Vice President Stanley said the purpose of the city was to make way for the low fare trolley company's tracks which are expected to come down Fulton street from Rhodes avenue to the East Side.

Stanley said there was no question of the right of the Cleveland Electric Company to the use of the tracks on Fulton street. He said the city's action was in violation of the company's franchise rights.

"We shall apply for an injunction to stop the work as soon as the courts are opened," he said.

At least a quarter of a mile of track has been torn up.

The traction war is a result of the street franchise fight in this city. The Cleveland Electric Company is operating certain of its lines under franchises which have expired. It has asked the council for renewals of these franchises, also additional franchises. Mayor Johnson, who has long advocated a 3-cent fare and municipal ownership, has opposed granting franchises to the old company unless a 3-cent fare was assured and the city received what he considered proper compensation for giving its rights to the trolley company. For more than five years the battle has waged in the courts, nearly every move of the city administration being blocked by an injunction secured by the trolley company.

BEGINS FIGHT ON GAMBLING AT THE RACES

ALBANY, N. Y., July 25.—The Rev. A. S. Gregg, field secretary of the National Reform Bureau, which waged a hard but unsuccessful fight in the last Legislature against gambling on race tracks, went to New York to-day for the purpose of organizing a campaign for the coming Fall. Mr. Gregg says that he expects to put between 50 and 100 volunteer speakers in the field before election.

"Our first move," said he, "is to agitate. All we need to do is to expose the gambling situation and the people will do the rest. We expect to stir up enough opposition to gambling on tracks and in pool rooms to insure the safe passage of a bill making the gambling on tracks a felony, and also to pass a bill appropriating $250,000 or $300,000 for county fairs, to take the place of the present five per cent. tax on racing associations for the benefit of the fairs. It was the opposition of some men interested in the fairs that killed the Cassidy-Lansing anti-gambling bill last year.

"As fast as the farmers see that the tax really depends on gambling at the races they are disposed to give their support to a direct appropriation bill."

PRISON CONSUMPTIVE ESCAPES

RUTLAND, July 25.—The people are to-day on the lookout for J. F. Paul, a Boston man, whom the officials of the State industrial camp say escaped from the new hospital for prison consumptives, which is being constructed, by jumping from an upper window. His escape was discovered within ten minutes, but no trace of him can be found.

ONLY 5 DAYS REMAIN

Trial treatment free. To demonstrate the true value of their new Light treatment to the greatest number of the sick, the Osmo-Chemic Physicians will give to all who apply for treatment on or before July 31 trial treatment absolutely free. This also includes free consultation, free X-Ray examination and free analysis of the urine.

The Osmo-Chemic Physicians desire that all the sick of this community shall test the value of Osmo-Chemic Leucodescent Rays without money and without price. Therefore they make, with their usual liberality, the following offer:

All the sick—it makes no difference what disease you may be suffering from—who apply at the offices of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, 18 Boylston St., Boston, Mass., on or before July 31st, will be entitled to receive trial treatment, including consultation, examination with the perfected X-Ray and chemical analysis of the urine absolutely free.

There is no hidden meaning to this offer. It means just what it says. The only restriction is in regard to the time the patient must apply at the office for the treatment, on or before July 31st, 1906. Manifestly an offer of this kind could not be continued indefinitely. Only six days remain.

LEUCODESCENT RAYS

What the Leucodescent Rays do:

(1) The "Leucodescent" Rays not only increase the nutrition of living animals and vegetable cells, thus promoting tissue-metabolism, but they are a powerful destroyer of germ life—bacteria, etc.

(2) The germ-destroying power of the light is in direct ratio to its intensity, which up to a certain degree of concentration, is in no way destructive to healthy animal tissue.

(3) It is the only therapeutic light that can be used with certainty of results and absolute safety in its application.

(4) That it is a pain-reliever by its intense, vibratory, rhythm-restoring force upon the nerve cell.

FROM MATTAPAN

Mrs. C. W. Hosington, who resides at 680 Walkhill st., Mattapan, Mass., is the wife of the popular police officer attached to station nine, Roxbury, Mr. Chas. Hosington. She said to the writer recently: "I was frightfully nervous; I was practically a nervous wreck when I applied to the Osmo-Chemic physicians for treatment. My feet were so painful I was compelled to use crutches. My spine was so tender that I was unable to turn over in my bed without assistance. I had been treated by other doctors, but was not benefited until following the advice of a friend who had been treated successfully by the Osmo-Chemic experts. I had them treat me. I at once concluded that the Osmo-Chemic treatment was the proper thing for my troubles and that it would cure me. I was right, for it did cure me. And now whenever I see any suffering from disease I advise the Osmo-Chemic treatment at once."

(Signed) MRS. C. W. HOSINGTON

FROM BROCKTON

Mr. Frank Newman, 97 Huntington St., Brockton, Mass., says: "I was so much improved with one month's treatment by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians after I suffered from nerve exhaustion that I am recommending the treatment to all my friends."

FROM MARLBORO

Miss Emily Davis, No. 1 Davis St., Marlboro, Mass., says: "The Osmo-Chemic treatment restored my mother's hearing; my sister was successfully treated and a number of friends restored to health by this marvellous treatment. I was treated for stomach disease, from which I had suffered untold agonies, and I was so delighted with the result that should I ever again need the assistance of a physician I shall go at once to the Osmo-Chemic Physicians."

(Signed) EMILY A. DAVIS

FROM ROXBURY

Mrs. Fannie B. Taylor, 362 Center St., Roxbury, Mass., says: "I was neither able to eat nor sleep on account of a dreadful soreness in my throat and lungs when I went to the Osmo-Chemic Physicians. Their treatment was wonderfully efficacious in my case. It cured me."

(Signed) MRS. FRANCIS B. TAYLOR.

FROM CAMBRIDGE

Mrs. Etta M. Cooper, 98 Green St., Cambridge, Mass., says: "I had been treated for years by doctors for female trouble, but was not benefited. They advised an operation, to which I would not consent. Instead I was treated with the marvellous New Light Treatment of the Osmo-Chemic and cured of my trouble."

MOTHER SAVES HER 2 BABIES FROM FLAMES

Gropes Way Through Blinding Smoke and Carries Them to Street.

OLDER ONLY 18 MONTHS

Running, almost blinded, through stifling smoke at her home, No. 42 Emerald street, early to-day, Mrs. Teehan, who lives on the second floor, managed to carry to the street her two babies, Frank and Richard, the elder being only eighteen months.

The fire in the house was discovered by William Phillips, who was passing? He ran up the stairs and found Mrs. Teehan eating her breakfast in the kitchen. Phillips told her the house was on fire and she rushed into the front room to save her babies, who were asleep there.

The smoke blinded her, but she groped her way to the bed in which the little ones lay, gathered them in her arms and carried them to the street. She handed them to neighbors and then fainted.

The first floor of the building is occupied by Wing Sing, a laundryman. He and his four assistants almost lost their heads in the excitement. They grabbed clothing of all descriptions, threw part of it through the windows and carried the rest to the sidewalk.

SOCIETY GIRL HOSPITAL BRIDE

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 25.—Major Charles McCawley, quartermaster U. S. Marine Corps, and Mrs. Sallie Freylinghuysen Davis of this city were married at the Providence hospital, where Major McCawley is recovering from typhoid fever. Both parties are prominent socially, and Major McCawley has been regarded as the Beau Brummel of the national capital.

He is a great favorite with the Roosevelt family. At Miss Roosevelt's coming out ball he led the cotillion with the debutante and had charge of the wedding arrangements. He has been the social major domo at the White House.

Demand for Clean Food

One American Product Everybody Knows Is Pure and Clean.

Clean food to eat and drink is as desirable as pure food. Unclean food can never be healthful—neither enjoyable. Nothing can so quickly steal away one's appetite or destroy the enjoyment of a pleasure—be it eating or drinking—as the mere thought, perhaps it is not clean. In these days of much agitation as to clean and unclean food we are often at a loss what to eat and drink. There is a sense of distrust of what is set before us. "Is it clean?" That is the question we ask ourselves and its very asking turns us away.

It is the method of "handling" in the manufacture of a food product that makes it clean or not clean. Pabst beer is not "handled." It is manufactured from the purest materials by the most scrupulously clean machinery by the exclusive Pabst method of brewing, which is most exacting in its cleanliness.

Pabst beer is a clean, wholesome food and the Pabst brewery is a model of cleanliness. No other food factory in the world can show such a record of cleanliness in the process of manufacture as the mammoth Pabst brewery, where the famous Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is made and bottled. From brew to bottle or keg Pabst beer is never touched by human hands; it never enters tube, pipe or storage tank that has not been perfectly sterilized beforehand, and, in fact, in its entire process of manufacture it never comes in contact with anything but sterilized utensils and pure filtered air.

When you pour out a glass of Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer you know you have a food that is clean and pure and wholesome. You will not distrust it. You will not ask "Is it clean?"

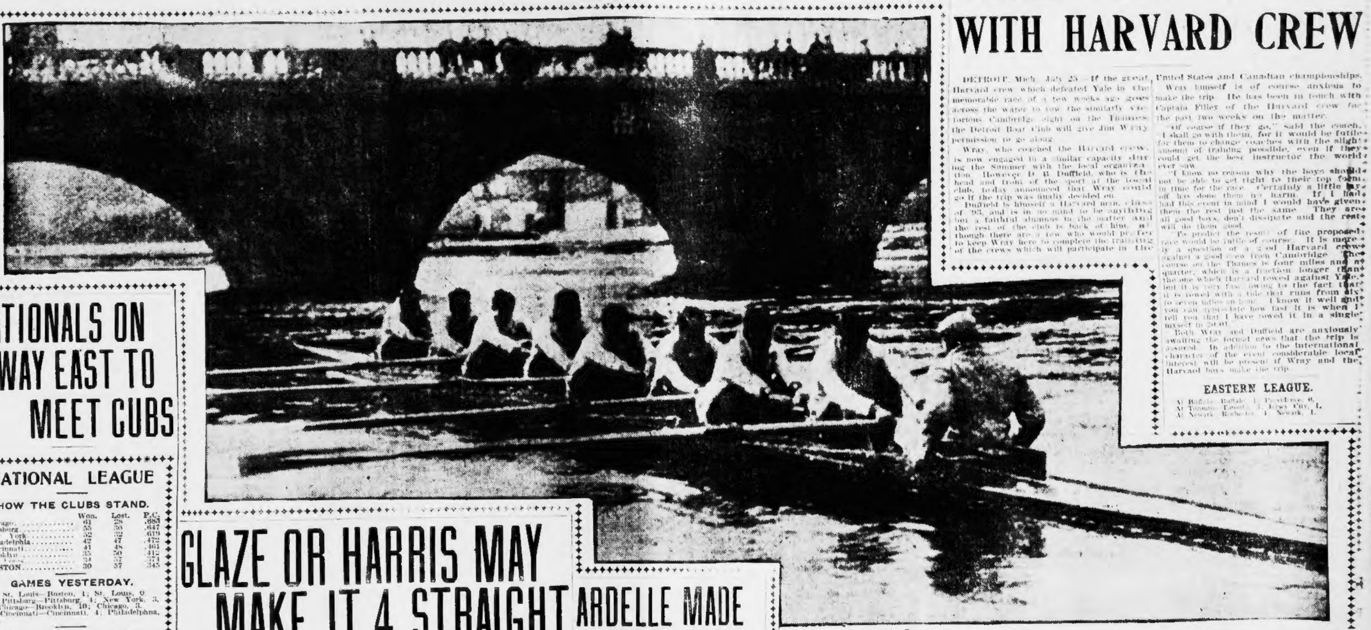
CAMBRIDGE CREW WHICH ROWS HARVARD SEPTEMBER 8



COACH WRAY TO GO WITH HARVARD CREW

DETROIT, Mich., July 25.—If the great Harvard crew which defeated Yale in the memorable race of a few weeks ago goes across the water to row the similarly victorious Cambridge eight on the Thames the Detroit Boat Club will give Jim Wray permission to go along.

Wray, who coached the Harvard crew, is now engaged in a similar capacity during the Summer with the local organization. However, D. B. Duffield, who is the head and front of the sport at the local club, today announced that Wray could go if the trip was finally decided on.

Duffield is himself a Harvard man, class of '93, and is in no mind to be anything but a faithful alumnus in the matter and the rest of the club is back of him, although there are a few who would prefer to keep Wray here to complete the training of the crews which will participate in the United States and Canadian championships.

Wray himself is of course anxious to make the trip. He has been in touch with Captain Filley of the Harvard crew for the past two weeks on the matter.

"Of course if they go," said the coach, "I shall go with them, for it would be futile for them to change coaches with the slight amount of training possible, even if they could get the best instructor the world ever saw.

"I know no reason why the boys should not be able to get right to their top form in time for the race. Certainly a little lay-off has done them no harm. If I had had this event in mind I would have given them the rest just the same. They are all good boys, don't dissipate and the rest will do them good.

"To predict the result of the proposed race would be futile of course. It is merely a question of a good Harvard crew against a good crew from Cambridge. The course on the Thames is four miles and a quarter, which is a fraction longer than the one which Harvard rowed against Yale, but it is very fast, owing to the fact that it is rowed with a tide that runs from six to seven miles an hour. I know it well and you can appreciate how fast it is when I tell you that I have rowed it in a single myself in 20:01."

Both Wray and Duffield are anxiously awaiting the formal news that the trip is assured. In addition to the international character of the event considerable local interest will be present if Wray and the Harvard boys make the trip.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Boston's tail-enders left here last night for Columbus avenue after taking a split-even series, inclusive of one of the most heart-breaking games that has been played by the Cardinals for several years. Although Tenney isn't going East with his team in sixth place he had a mighty pleased expression on his face on boarding his sleeper last night and it is probable that he won't be afraid to meet the Cubs to-morrow on his grounds by the railroad track.

By one run to nothing, secured on two bunts, the squad from the Hub made their best mark of the Western trip yesterday. Both Tenney and Bridwell were equal to the occasion when a bunt was necessary and on each occasion Karger, who was supposed to field the bunts, slipped on his heel and endeavored to throw the ball while lying flat on his back.

In the ninth the Cardinals came close to registering by a single and a double steal, but O'Neil was in the way.

BRITT FIGHT WITH TERRY DECLARED OFF

Special to the Boston American.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Unless Joe Humphreys, manager of Terry McGovern, is willing to accept the terms of sixty per cent. of the gross receipts offered by Jimmy Coffroth, the fight promoter of California, for a twenty-round battle between Jimmy Britt and Terry, to be fought in San Francisco in the next two months, there is no chance of these pugilists coming together.

Humphreys says he will allow McGovern to box Britt, but he must be guaranteed that McGovern will get $10,000 for his trouble. As Matchmaker Coffroth has frequently stated that he would never again guarantee a certain sum of money, it is a safe bet that he will not give in to McGovern, despite the fact that he realizes the bout would draw big receipts.

THOMAS MAY BEAT SULLY

Added interest was given to the show at the Lincoln Club, Chelsea, next Tuesday when the far-famed Californian, Joe Thomas, arrived in this city. He is a strong, rugged looking chap, one who has the powerful jaw of a determined man, and whose action denotes the athlete.

In company with his manager, Harry Foley, he went at once to Highland Lake where he will finish up his work for the mill next Tuesday.

Sullivan is certainly going against a rough house boxer in Thomas, one who is continually slamming in with speed and who never stops being on the aggressive. The fact that Sullivan is preparing himself carefully at Salisbury Beach shows that he appreciates the fact that he must be in the best physical shape if he hopes to have victory alight upon his banner.

It is a splendid spectacle and one which will please the spectators, to see men in the acme of condition exhibiting the brilliant science of the manly art. Sullivan is a first-class boxer, one who can give and take hard blows, and he is facing a lad who, as yet, has never known the bitterness of defeat.

Sullivan, however, is a tough lad for anyone to beat, and if the lad from the Pacific coast expects an easy victory he is apt to be greatly surprised. Sullivan believes that he has now secured the opportunity which he has wanted so long, and intends to take advantage of it.

Umpires—Connolly and Evans.

At no period in this season has the stock in the local Americans boomed so high. Right on the eve of the western trip the team shows the finest article of diamond sport that it has given since the days of the flag fight.

This afternoon winds up the series with the Indians, who haven't had a smell of the game in three clashes, and the two bands get going to-day at 3 o'clock so as to get underway for the West at a seasonable hour.

Three games in a row look pretty nice and that double clamping yesterday just stirred the fans up to the fact that the team is somewhere on the way after all and may yet show a few surprises.

This fourth tournament will be a spectacle worth going a few miles to see, for the Indians will be ashamed to return to the Forest City without a single Hub scalp, though it will only be just retribution for their behavior that last time they were here, when they cleaned up the series their own way. Glaze or Harris will do the box juggling.

Besides the pleasant sensation to the fans of seeing the home talent dig out two games in an afternoon, there were some other bright lights which came to the surface. The work of Morgan, who had heretofore been in the back ground, shone above everything else in the double contest. He outbatted any player on the field with a single, two two-baggers and a home run, knocking in scores as well as annexing some himself.

After vainly trying to connect with Cy Young's speed and shoots, Collins decided to give the Naps a taste of wide curves and break balls and sent Jess Tannehill to the rubber to show his skill. It was a wise move, as the left arm heaves were too much for Lajoie's gang.

The second contest was a comedy of errors because of the treacherous condition of the grounds, owing to the wetting down they had received from the intermittent showers, and the players were not wholly to blame for the funny things that happened.

Dusty Rhodes got his bumps a plenty and after the fifth when Morgan got his homer to the centre field bleachers, which followed a two baser by Freeman in the same locality, he was relegated to the stable and Harry Eels relieved him. There was no stopping the Pilgrims at this stage and Harry's life was made miserable by the constant addition to the score and the game wound up 9 to 2.

Rossman and Jackson won the honors of the day on fancy catches. The former reached over the heads of the first base bleacherites and took a foul in his mitt hand. He also ate up a ground hit which was good for several bases. Jackson, on the dead run, stopped the progress of the ball going over his head, labeled for a big total, in his glove and on his toes and brought down the house.

ATTELL TO FIGHT BRITT IN AUGUST

Abe Attell must now make good that little bluff of his about fighting light weights. Jimmy Britt has called it.

Word reached New York yesterday that Britt had accepted the terms offered in Los Angeles for the contest between himself and Attell, and already Brother Willus and the big cigar are puffing some down in the land of sunshine and oranges.

Attell is the biggest favorite that ever reached Los Angeles. The marvellous exhibition of boxing which he gave when he held Kid Herman, even, coupled with his real fighting ability, as demonstrated against Frankie Neil, has made him the sensation of Southern California. When no man of his weight could be found to meet him he suggested that Britt, Harry Lewis, Terry McGovern, Joe Gans or Battling Nelson be engaged for the fight.

Lewis was matched up too long ahead for the early date. McGovern wanted too much money and so did Nelson. Gans scorned the match. So Jimmy Britt came to the fore, and now Abie and Jimmy have all but signed the articles for the bout.

The one hitch may be on the weight question. Attell will try to get Britt down as low as possible, and already the air out Los Angeles way is blue from Brother Willus's conversation.

The men, in the event of the weight matter being settled, will box about the middle of August.

YALE MEN TO WEAR SLEEVES

NEW HAVEN, July 25.—No more tights or bare arms are permissible for instructors in gymnastics in the Yale Summer school while the women classes are working. Big biceps that caused admiration may no longer be displayed. All men pupils also who take the calisthenic exercises at such times must wear trousers and long sleeved jerseys. In consequence heavy work on horses, parallel bars and weights must be done at hours when young women are not on hand.

ARDELLE MADE WORLD'S MARK AT WINDSOR

DETROIT, Mich., July 25.—In the presence of the largest crowd that ever went to a harness race meeting at Windsor, a new world's record was hung up yesterday afternoon. Ardelle, the Chamber of Commerce stake candidate of Geers, won the opening mile in 2:05¼, which is faster than the big stake was ever won at Grosse Pointe, and the fastest mile ever made by a mare in her first racing season in July. Ardelle was favorite over a big field and beat them as she pleased, winning the first heat from behind, and in the others being in front. Every winner was a race favorite. In the 2:24 trot, Ann Direct showed much class and won without being extended.

The 2:08 trot was a work-out for Mainsheet, that stallion winning handily and in the season's trotting record of 2:08¼.

MIKE REGAN HOLDS RECEPTION FOR BAN

Mike Regan gave to Ban Johnson, president of the American League, at Parker's last night one of those informal dinners where everybody had a right royal good time. President Johnson was the guest of the occasion. T. H. Murnane was the principal speaker of the evening. Among those present were A. H. C. Mitchell, Melville E. Webb, Jr., Peter F. Kelley, Jesse Burkett, A. G. Doe, T. J. Boles, J. P. Gallagher, Fred O'Connell, F. T. Powers, Colonel P. H. Hurley of Worcester and J. C. Morse.

COFFROTH COMPLETES ARRANGEMENTS FOR GANS AND NELSON FIGHT

No one need be surprised to see Joe Gans and Battling Nelson meet in what will practically be a finish fight for the lightweight championship title this Fall in Jim Coffroth's arena at Colma, Cal. Anyone who is close to the fighting Dane is aware that he is firmly of the opinion that he can beat the colored lightweight in a long battle, and that the only reason that the fight has not taken place long ago was because he has not been allowed to have his own way in the matter.

"With Gans at 133 pounds ringside I can beat him sure and certain," says Nelson.

"He would be likely to give me an awful walloping for the first ten rounds, but from there on he would not be so very dangerous as some folk would imagine.

Gans Would Be Weak.

"I do not doubt for one moment but Gans can do 133 pounds ringside, as required," said Nelson, when speaking of the probability of a match being made between them. "But after doing it I can hardly see him fit to go the route in a long bruising battle, such as I feel sure I would give him.

"He has lately been fighting at what has practically been catchweights, and still he was unable to knock out his opponents, although he was able to land repeatedly and apparently with all the force he possessed.

"With the exception of the two fights he had with Mike (Twin) Sullivan, he has won all his other contests lately on points, which makes me feel very certain of besting him over a distance of ground.

"In his contests with Harry Lewis and Jack Blackburn in Philadelphia he did not even score a knockdown in either bout, although he is reported as having landed a great many of what appeared to be his hardest blows on both occasions.

Let the Negro Alone.

"My friends tell me to let the negro alone; that if I fight him he will be sure to beat me. I don't think so, and have not thought so for a year or more, and I think I know as much about Gans and myself as my friends do."

All this, and more, too, has Nelson said, and everyone who knows him is aware that he is not a braggart but extremely modest when speaking of himself.

Some believe Gans can do 133 pounds ringside and be fit to fight the battle of his life. Nelson and Nolan think otherwise.

Can Gans Make Weight?

A great many other authorities on pugilism insist that Gans cannot make the weight and be strong. Others think they are all wrong, and believe they know as much about the weight the colored man can do as any one, not even barring Herford, and when the time arrives for the posting of forfeits watch how quickly the Gans money for weight goes up.

That it should be a great battle goes without saying, and as a betting proposition it will be the biggest of its kind that has happened in this country in the last ten years.

Gans, as a matter of course, thinks he can win handily, and for that reason will have a large following who will bet money freely on the black man's chances. It will certainly be a big thing for Jim Coffroth if he can bring these two whirlwind fighters together for the lightweight championship of the world.

BATTY MAY JOIN GIANTS

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 25.—When the Giants leave for home to-day they may take with them "Ed" Abbaticchio, the former Boston National short stop, who refused to join the Tenney tribe this season, but has been devoting his entire time to a hostelry owned by his father at Latrobe, Pa.

President John T. Brush and Manager McGraw spent yesterday at Latrobe, where they went for the purpose of holding a conference with Abbaticchio, and to try to get him to accept the very liberal terms they offered.

It was said that the New York owner had held out such alluring terms that Abbaticchio could not refuse and do himself justice.

If McGraw secures Abbaticchio he will probably play him at second base.

TOURISTS SLEEP IN TENTS AFTER HARDEST DAY'S RUN

JACKSON, Me., July 25.—The novelty of the Glidden tour so far was accorded the motorists last night when they were placed in canvas tents to sleep on the outskirts of this town. On account of the lack of hotel accommodations this was made necessary. Three cots were placed in each tent and the entire party tucked away.

The weather was so cold that few experienced sleep and the consequence was that when the start was made this morning there was a pretty listless-looking crowd that piled into the different cars.

Yesterday's run was another elimination day. The road was slippery with mud and the new schedule, which called for 110 miles in the same time that it has been calling for half that number, resulted in the downfall of many.

The only White steamer left in the contest with a clean score, when Quebec was reached, driven by H. K. Sheridan, was found to be knocked out. It sustained five punctures during the run and was penalized for six minutes behind time at the fourth checking station at Beauceville, Quebec. Arthur Holden, driving a Stearns car, incurred punctured tires and lost points.

Theodore E. Schultz of New York broke an axle of his car, which had a clean score until yesterday. J. G. Cassatt was penalized and so was Wilbur C. Walker, in his Pope-Hartford. Sidney S. Gorham, secretary of the A. A. A., had a spring broken in his Winton. The English Daimler car driven by Thomas F. Moore sustained a puncture and was penalized. The locomobile driven by B. H. Knowles of Brooklyn broke an axle and spring and replaced both within one hour control. Watson Coleman of Lynn, Mass., had a breakdown in his White car. Charles Anger, a non-contestant, had a broken spring. Ezra Kirk sustained a punctured tire on his Thomas car but lost no time between checking stations.

These were the doleful tales told by the contestants as they foregathered about the camp fires last night, for fires were necessary to warm the air in the tents in this cool village. The tourists arrived here early in the afternoon.

Percy P. Pierce, the holder of the Glidden trophy, was the first contestant to cross from Canada to American territory.

It was up-hill climbing nearly all the way and at times the cars were on top of mountains. Some stretches of road were terrible.

The last part the run from Quebec was very pretty, going for miles through the woods, but the drivers had to hustle, so the beauty of the country was lost to them.

F. E. Wing of Boston came through on time all the day, and he is still among the perfect scorers. W. W. Burke in his big Columbia made all the controls without any bother, and C. F. Barrett, the other Columbia driver, also maintains a perfect score. George Otis Draper of Hopedale broke a spring. W. Ridgeway was ditched, but he managed to get out and finish the run. Holden was another who was wiped off the clean score sheet. He is driving a big Stearns car.

PULLIAM CERTAIN TO BE A MAGNATE

Latest developments in the report that the Boston National Club will change hands, as announced in the BOSTON AMERICAN yesterday, seem to be borne out by the statement coming from a most reliable source.

It has been learned through an authority that Harry Pulliam has been seeking the ownership of a National League team, having become tired of the worries, inactivity and cares of the president's office, and desires to become a magnate on the National circuit. Of course, it would not be policy for Mr. Pulliam to become associated with the American League, since he has been affiliated with the National organization and depended on its support.

Recently Garry Herrmann, owner of the Cincinnati Club, sought to help Mr. Pulliam out by selling him his stock in the Philadelphia Club, but this move was frustrated by the Reds' president's shares being bought up by the president of the Quakers. It is unnecessary to say that Pulliam was greatly disappointed, but he still has hopes, especially as several of the big men in National League affairs are satisfied that with such a hustling and executive head in the ranks that it would be better all round and they are perfectly willing that he should assume the responsibility of some club which needs bolstering up and where young shoulders could assume the burden and carry it along successfully.

All this leads up to the story which came from Chicago saying that Pulliam would become owner of the Boston Nationals.

President Soden, the present head of the Boston Nationals, says that there have been no negotiations entered into as yet for the transfer of the team, but this does not mean that some steps will not be taken shortly to bring it about.

How to Tempt the Dainty Appetite of a Delicate Child

IF the appetite of a healthy child who ordinarily eats well should occasionally fall off for a day or two, then it certainly ought on no account to be urged to eat. But quite different treatment is necessary for the delicate child, who never has a hearty appetite.

The disinclination for food is an indication or some little gastric derangement for which the very best treatment is abstinence from all solid food until the wish for it returns.

This of itself, with rest in bed and a draught of the effervescing citrate of magnesia, will generally effect a cure for the temporary stomach troubles of children.

These usually proceed either from cold or from some indiscretion in diet, and in either case rest—both in limbs and digestive organs—and warmth do more good than any medicine, though the draught just mentioned is an admirable corrective and stomach sedative.

Quite different treatment is necessary for the delicate child who never at any time has what nurses call "a hearty appetite."

It is a child such as this who, if left to himself, will certainly not take a sufficiency of nourishment, and, as a consequence, will often drift into a condition of bad health brought on simply and solely from semi-starvation.

Many a child in well-to-do nurseries is half-starved in the midst of plenty, merely because the little creature has naturally a very poor appetite and is not urged to take food, whether he likes it or not. This case is a good, practical illustration of the subject.

A child of four, always rather delicate and needing to be urged to eat, and often actually having to be hand fed by his careful nurse, had the misfortune to lose this nurse for two months, because she fell ill and had to leave.

During this time he was in charge of his mother, who did not recognize the necessity for sitting patiently beside him for a whole weary hour insisting upon spoonful after spoonful of potatoes and gravy, suet pudding, etc., being swallowed. The child was not urged to eat. He was allowed to take as little as he liked, and it was very little.

The nurse returned at the end of the two months. Soon afterward the child's health began visibly to fail, glandular swelling in the neck developed, and after a time an operation had to be performed.

The advice of the great surgeon who performed it was this: "To prevent the recurrence of enlarged glands and to keep the child from drifting into consumption, he must be well fed. Never mind if he does take an hour over his dinner. Sit by him and see that it is eaten, whether he likes it or not.

"Give him a beaten up egg in a cup of milk at seven in the morning or as soon as he wakes and as much milk during the day as you can induce him to swallow.

"Food, food, food, and, if possible, sea air. These are our chief means for preventing enlarged glands."

By the careful following of this advice the child has developed into a tempestuous school boy.

NOW CAN YOU IDENTIFY THIS PHOTO OF A WOMAN SHOPPER?

If It Is Yours You Win One of the Daily Prizes

ISN'T this a typical snapshot of a busy Boston woman shopper? A small picture of the woman was printed on this page yesterday. It was not identified. And it isn't strange, for only the woman's head and shoulders were reproduced.

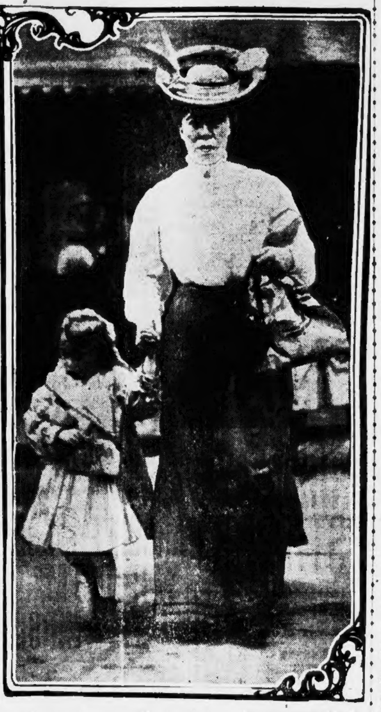
Now you have the whole picture. Identification ought to be easy now. There's no question about it's being a picture of a shopper, is there?

See the bundles in the woman's arms? Do you notice that even the little girl carries a purchase in her hand.

Here's a tip that may lead to identifying the photo. It was taken Monday morning just before noon near a Roxbury store that is patronized by readers of this newspaper. The store isn't far from the Dudley Street Terminal.

If you know the original tell her to call at the BOSTON AMERICAN office, identify the photo and receive the prize of $2 which is awaiting her. If she can't call, tell her to send along her photo and the money will be mailed her promptly.

The snapshot in last Saturday's BOSTON AMERICAN was identified by Miss Laura Norris of Newark, N. J. She is visiting at Winthrop Beach, and the camera man caught her as she stepped out of the store of James A. Houston Friday morning.



THE ORIGINAL OF THIS SNAPSHOT WILL RECEIVE A PRIZE OF $2 UPON IDENTIFYING IT AT THE BOSTON AMERICAN OFFICE

Education Is Not Always Worth the Sacrifice It Costs

By Dorothy Dix

THIS is the time of year when poor mothers, who have bright girls and boys, drink deepest of the bitter waters of poverty.

They see other parents preparing to send their children off to famous schools, and it cuts them to the quick to know that no such educational advantages will be for their sons and daughters. "Oh, if I might only send Mamie to the conservatory of music!" "Oh, if I might only give Tom a college education," is the burden of the pathetic prayers with which thousands of ambitious women nightly storm the portals of heaven.

But it is impossible.

With all their work, with all their saving and pinching and paring and economizing they can barely make the ends of their income and their expenses meet, as it is.

Any further outlay is not to be thought of. So the poor mother can only bemoan her fate in not being able to give her swans the opportunities that are being wasted on other people's geese.

I would not be thought logical to decry the advantages of a college education for either girl or boy.

All of us are mighty liable to need in our business everything we can find out, and a little more, but I would like to comfort the poor mother by reminding her that not all knowledge comes with the university label upon it, and that the man and woman who get their education in the stern schools of poverty graduate from an institution of learning that turns out more successes than all the combined colleges on earth.

Rests With the Child

It is natural that mothers, who are more tender than wise, should grieve that their children must struggle for an education, instead of having it administered to them in sugar-coated pills, but it should compensate them to reflect that most of the men and women whose names are kept standing in type in newspaper offices never attended a college, or had a class pin, or learned a college yell in their lives.

It is one of the ironies of circumstances that those who have the best advantages generally make the least out of them.

We value everything, knowledge included, just in proportion as it is hard to get, and, paradoxical as it seems, the best way to educate children is to make it a privilege instead of a punishment to go to school.

The public schools afford all the ground work of an education that any one needs.

The poorest mother in the land can give her children that, and, having that, the balance is in the boys' and girls' own hands.

If it is in them to take an education, they will get it for themselves. If it isn't they wouldn't get an education though she sent them to Yale or Harvard or Vassar.

"You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink," says the old proverb, and in the same way you can send girls and boys to school, but you can't make them study.

Of course if people have plenty of money the experiment is worth trying on the off chance that even if they don't study they will absorb some culture along with football and how to make fudge.

A Neglected Study

BUT among poor people, where the money to send Sally to a fashionable school, or John to a high-priced college, is literally blood money wrung by incredible toil and sacrifices out of the overworked parents, such a thing ought not to be thought of for a moment.

It doesn't pay. It doesn't pay.

Nothing else in the world is to me so pathetic as the annual martyrdom of parents on the altar of dull, commonplace, ordinary girls and boys that they are trying to galvanize into geniuses by sending them to school.

Poor fathers are working overtime. Poor mothers are bending over cook stoves and slaving over sewing machines. Tables are cut down to the meagerest fare.

And all for what? Ninety times out of a hundred that a boy may acquire the proud distinction of playing on a football team or belonging to a glee club, and that a girl may learn to play bourgeois music—that she forgets in two years after she is married.

Education is whatever best fits us to live our lives with profit to ourselves and others. That knowledge is not exclusively taught in schools, nor to be learned from books.

The education that is bought at the price of struggling and striving and self-denial of parents is not worth what it costs.

Besides, we have too many youthful geniuses living on their families. What we need is more young men and women comforting and helping their old father and mother.

That branch of education is sadly neglected, and is worth reviving.

HOW TO SERVE CURRANTS

MANY delicious dishes may be made with currants. Both red and white varities, served fresh, well covered with sugar, make a good fruit dish for breakfast. The following recipes are ways in which this fruit may be prepared or preserved.

CURRANT SYRUP

PLACE the required quantity of fresh ripe red currants in a granite bowl and mash them with a wooden mallet; cover the bowl and let stand for three hours. Strain through wooden bags, measure juice and put in porcelain lined kettle with one pint sugar to each pint of juice. Boil until reduced to a clear syrup, keeping well skimmed, then take off fire and allow it to become cool. Pour into small bottles and on top of each put a little sweet oil to preserve it, then cork tight. Allow bottles to stand upright in dark closet.

SPICED CURRANTS

WASH and pick five pounds of currants, add two tablespoonfuls of allspice, three pounds of granulated sugar, one pint of cider vinegar and one tablespoonful of powdered cloves and one tablespoonful of powdered cinnamon, stew gently for three hours.

CURRANT CONSERVE

TAKE five pounds of stemmed currants, the pulp of six oranges, and two pounds of washed and stoned raisins; mix well with three pounds of sugar, or four if the oranges are sour, and simmer till thick. Some housewives add to the currant conserve recipe a pound of sour cherries, pitted. They are usually considered a welcome addition to the flavor, although a novelty.

CURRANT PUNCH

THIS delightfully refreshing beverage requires three pints of ripe currants, one pint red raspberries, juice of two lemons, juice of two oranges, three quarts of water and sugar syrup to sweeten to taste. Crush the currants and raspberries, add the lemon and orange juice and the water. Let stand.

CURRANT BAR-LE-DUC

GET the largest size currants, red or white, and stem them without breaking. To each pound allow three pounds of sugar. Take some ordinary currants and bruise them while warm until you have a pint of juice.

Put half a cup of this into a porcelain preserving kettle and add three pounds of sugar. Bring slowly to a boil and skim very carefully. After boiling five minutes drop in carefully one pound of the large currants and simmer four minutes.

Take them out without breaking them and boil the syrup down five minutes, or longer if it is not very thick; as the currants are sometimes less juicy than at others a few minutes more will be needed at one time than another.

When thick skim well and strain through a hot cloth over the fruit. Put it into little jelly glasses and when cold cover with hot paraffine and paste paper over all.

Keep this preserve, like strawberries, in the dark.

Make only a small quantity of this preserve at a time, to avoid crushing the fruit; it is better to use the rule as it is given than to double it.

CANNED CURRANTS

LOOK them over carefully, stem and weigh them, allowing a pound of sugar to every one of fruit; put them in a kettle, cover and leave them to heat slowly and stew gently for twenty or thirty minutes; then add the sugar, and shake the kettle occasionally to make it mix with the fruit; do not allow it to boil, but keep as hot as possible until the sugar is dissolved; then pour it in cans and secure the covers at once. White currants are preserved in this way.

CURRANT ICE

A REFRESHING ice is made of currants or raspberries, or equal portions of each. Squeeze enough fruit in a jelly bag to make a pint of juice; add a pint each of the water and sugar; pour the whole, boiling hot, on to three whites of eggs, beaten to a stiff froth, and whip the mixture thoroughly. When cool freeze in the usual manner. Part red raspberry juice is a much finer flavor.

Any juicy fruit may be prepared in this manner.

New Style Clocks for Lazy People

"FORTY clocks in one house is not by any means uncommon," said a Boston clockmaker. "In some private residences the timepieces exceed even this number. Almost any house of fair size will have from fifteen clocks up to twenty or thirty."

"How are so many clocks kept in good running order?"

"Easily enough. No one in the house is supposed to touch or wind a single clock. That duty is left to the clockmaker.

"I spend one day each week winding clocks. In one house alone an hour and a half of my time each week is taken up in winding the clocks. Of course, I regulate them, too. And if there is any slight repair to be made, I attend to that also.

"This constant and careful attention is economical in the long run. When a clockmaker attends to your timepieces you may be sure the work is done thoroughly. For he is regular in his work, and regular winding means better time.

"One lady I know has more than forty clocks in her Summer home. I make a trip one day each week up there through the Summer season to keep her clocks in good shape. She is a great lover of timepieces, and has many rare and beautiful specimens, and never tires of adding a new clock to her collection.

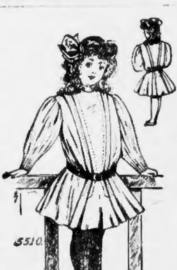
"Many persons buy clocks just the same as they do bric-a-brac, and the number they already have never seems in any way to affect their purchase of new ones that may strike their fancy. There is an old saying that there's always room for another clock, and I fancy that's about right.

"No house seems to be complete without one, and as some residences have nearly a hundred rooms, it is easy to understand how one house may contain forty or more clocks and yet not have the appearance of a clockmaker's shop, as one might at first think.

"We have now clocks that suit the laziest and most forgetful person down to the ground. They are imported, and run for four hundred days with one winding. Anybody ought to be able to remember to wind a clock in that time, and this style of timepiece seems to be meeting with great favor, for we have recently sold a great many of them."

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

Girl's Dress



No. 5,510—There is a certain style about the pleated belted in dresses for little girls that makes them very becoming. This model has a fitted body lining, that may be omitted if preferred, and a full circular skirt, that flares smartly at the lower edge. The waist closes invisibly on the left side under a pleat. CHAPTER LXXVI.—Continued

"MASTER" was the word on his lips; but the word was not spoken. Haggard, very pale, had jumped up and gripped the man's arm, feeling that he could have gripped his throat with infinitely more satisfaction.

"You drunken madman, listen to me," he whispered in a low, intense voice, "don't you realize you have an audience besides myself?"

"Who cares if I have?" cried Grieve with a laugh. "That's your look-out; you shouldn't have come your high-handed airs over me. I'm not going to stand 'em."

"If it's my look-out, as you put it, it's yours too! Do you want to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs? If you do, you are going the best way about it by letting the clerks see that you have some power over me which prevents my resenting your insolence as it deserves! You madman, if only for your own sake—the only argument you'll listen to—don't ruin us both! For my ruin is yours—never forget that. If suspicion were aroused and the truth came out, what would your position be?"

Haggard's white strained face, intense and quivering with suppressed fury and hatred, showed how intolerable the position was becoming for him. The insolence of this parasite trading on his secret maddened him—the more because he was powerless to shake him off.

"I'm neither mad nor drunk," said Grieve, sullenly, "and if I were"—and he chuckled maliciously—"I've got that here that will keep you sober enough for the pair of us! Look, you've never seen it yet, Haggard, I don't mind showing it to you in the daytime—where there are no backrooms with deep cupboards!"

A Message

Haggard understood the allusion, and the frown on the contracted brows deepened. Grieve pulled out an envelope, rather bulky, and addressed to the firm of solicitors, Muir & Prothero, "per Mr. Grieve," in a handwriting that Haggard recognized as his partner's.

"Not such a bold hand as he usually wrote, do you think, Haggard? But his hand was—naturally—a bit shaky that morning," said Grieve, smiling as he put the packet away in his inner pocket.

"I've had a message about Robert Wynter," said Haggard with an effort.

"A message?"

Grieve looked startled as he snatched the telegram Haggard handed to him; then as he read it a reassured expression crossed his face.

"Oh, Robert Wynter won't trouble us, never fear! He's as safe as though we'd tied ledgers to his heels and watched the sea close over him——"

Grieve stopped suddenly and gave a quick nervous glance over his shoulder. The thought had flashed back on him of that strange fancy that had possessed him in the moonlit garden as he left Haggard's house a few nights ago: when for a moment, with a thrill of superstitious fear, he had thought that the dead man was watching him from among the lilacs.

Though he had persuaded himself that it was a trick played by the moonlight and the shadows, and perhaps Haggard's whiskey, it had shaken his nerves, when he had summoned up courage to look back and found that momentary vision gone.

Then he saw that Haggard was staring intently at him.

"But you are eating your own words," Haggard said in an odd voice. "You must have forgotten how positive you were that the survivor was Wynter playing a ruse on us. Why have you changed your opinion?" he demanded. There was suspicion in his voice.

"Who has changed his opinion?" said Grieve quickly, glancing furtively at Haggard, as though he realized he had made a slip.

He had not failed to see, what Haggard had seen, that if Wynter were really dead and Wynter's partner knew it, Haggard would be able to snap his fingers at him.

"Of course the police are right. It is Wynter. What they say about initials proves it. I'm a trifle mixed—been a bit festive this morning!" he went on. "But don't you be fuzzy about Wynter, Haggard, old chap. We're pals, you and I——"

"Accomplices, if you like," said Haggard, his fingers itching to be at the ex-clerk's throat.

"Same thing, isn't it? You leave it to me to tackle Wynter when he turns up. Between you and me, I think that blow's made him wrong in the head—but not too mad not to wreck you, my fine fellow, unless you have my help. You can't afford to make an enemy of me—never forget that little item!"

"You speak very glibly of how you can make him powerless to injure me—to injure us, I should say—when he comes and shows his hand. Have you the power?"

A Bargain

Grieve smiled.

"Want me to show my hand, don't you?"

"I want to be sure you can keep your promise."

"Shall I tell you?" Grieve cried, boastingly. "What if I know where Wynter is now? What if I've already laid my trap for him?"

"Words are easy," said Haggard quietly.

"What if the reason Wynter doesn't come is that he can't?—that, hearing of the passenger who went ashore, I acted in both our interests, sent an agent I could trust, who was lucky enough to intercept the man there, and—never mind what! Sounds like a romance, doesn't it?"

"It sounds like a poor effort of the imagination," said Haggard, coolly, deliberately trying to force further information.

"Oh, you don't believe it? Well, who cares? Only Wynter is safe—safe from the power of molesting you, as long as you and I are partners."

The man was lying. Haggard looked at him closely; he more than half suspected he was lying.

"Now come along out. I'm not going to stick in these musty offices on a day like this, and I want a companion; it's dull work being alone. The business can get along all right for a day without you—it will still be here when you come back! Come out and enjoy life, you dull dog!"

In the outer office the clerks were talking in whispers about the new development Grieve's sudden burst from the grub into the butterfly. His manner toward Haggard, the loud, hectoring tone they had heard, which Haggard had not apparently resented, filled them with eager speculation. What was at the back of it all, they wondered.

A few minutes later Haggard and Grieve passed through the office into the street.

Haggard had declined the invitation at first; then had mentally decided that it was not safe to leave Grieve alone in his present mood. The man had declared his intention of going out to make a day of it—unless watched, what drunken confidences might he not be betrayed into making, and bring ruin on the pair of them?

To Drink the Cup

They passed out through the door, into the sunlight. Grieve was bubbling with the foolish, senseless laughter of a man who has been drinking, not heavily, but too much to be quite rational.

As they turned up the street his laugh suddenly died away, and he looked back with an altered expression of face at the doorway of the office building, through which as a clerk he had so often passed.

"Do you know," Grieve said with a half-laugh, "a funny feeling came over me just then—can't explain it, but the feeling as if I was passing through that office door for the last time. Queer, isn't it?"

"Do you think so?" responded Haggard curtly.

Why should he be interested in this half-drunken fool's maunderings?

"The times I've passed through that door that grew to be like a prison door, shutting me out from the joy and color of life! Haggard," he broke out, in sudden passionate vehemence, "when I look back on those years, when I used to come to the day's drudgery morning after morning, year in and year out, and at night, when the day's slavery had been exacted, to go back to a badly cooked meal in cheerless rooms, night after night, year in and year out—when I look back on that, I say, do you wonder if it sweeps me off my feet to know that at last I'm free?

"Well, I have passed through that door for the last time—as a servant bound to the wheel of deadening routine! It must have been that knowledge that prompted that sudden queer feeling that passed over me. I'm the driver now, no longer one of the driven! I'm going to taste the savor of life—to drink its brimming cup to the dregs! Do you hear, Haggard?"

"I've passed through that door for the last time—as a servant!" Grieve cried. "I'm the driver now—no longer one of the driven! I'm going to drain the cup of pleasure, to the dregs—do you hear, Haggard?"

Haggard did not reply. He walked on, moodily silent, with a set face. Grieve laughed a low, triumphant laugh.

"You tried to haul me over the coals to-day for not showing up at the office. I've had my fill of the office; I can promise you it'll see little enough of me in the future, the office and the city!" he cried, speaking rapidly, almost incoherently, in his intoxicating sense of triumph. "That other city, where men laugh and enjoy life, and take their pleasures and women smile at you if you have money, and the wine gleams in the electric light—that other city is open to me now!"

Gone and Dead

And one or two people turned in passing to look at this brand-new man in the brand new clothes, who had doubtless been drinking too freely of brand-new whiskey, his voice and manner were so unrestrained.

Still Haggard made no reply; only the look of disgust deepened in his face.

"The years I've spent in drudgery beyond that doorway are gone and dead. Now I'm going to crowd the days with pleasure and gayety. Life, real life, is calling! Haggard, you shall see how the clerk you despised can play the man of the world, and wring the juice out of life like a squeezed orange.

TO MAKE SHOES WEAR

IF mothers when buying shoes for the children would adopt the following hint they would find that they would last twice as long and also resist the damp.

Procure some boiled linseed oil, pour it on to a large flat dish or tin, and allow the shoes to stand in it for about twelve hours, or until the soles are well soaked. This does not, however, apply to brown shoes.

MELTED BUTTER SAUCE

IS often confused with white sauce, which will be thought a great error by a good cook. Dissolve one ounce of butter in an enameled or copper pan, add one ounce of flour, and stir till all is dissolved gradually add three-quarters of a pint of cold water and stir till the sauce is cooked and leaves the sides of the pan. Chopped capers, shrimps, wine and flavorings are used for this sauce. Melted butter and wine sauce, sweetened, and with a little lemon juice, is always popular with boiled puddings.

GIRLS AND THEIR DAY DREAMS

DAY DREAMS are not the especial property of young men and maidens, for they are indulged in by older folks, who laugh at themselves and know all the time how foolish, though how sweet, are the pictures they conjure up in their minds.

And who would stay the girl from dreaming? One day she walks along calmly in the most stolid and practical frame of mind, happy and contented in the outlook before her. The next day all is changed. Some one has crossed her path, his eyes have flashed into hers, and a world of happy possibilities have flung themselves before her vision. Day dreams will come, perhaps, to fade away before the arrival of another, yet they may stay to materialize.

Without her day dreams what would a girl be? Through them does she not strive to be as she pictures the gracious, beautiful heroine of her dreams to be? And it is the beautiful life of her imaginings that she endeavors to live.

When Prince Charming rides her way, no matter what his appearance, her dreams enable her to see in him one endowed with all the graces and attractiveness of goodness, a figure in trappings of such beauty that they cannot be rivalled. Where others would see faults she sees none, for he is the hero of her dreamland, and so beyond criticism.

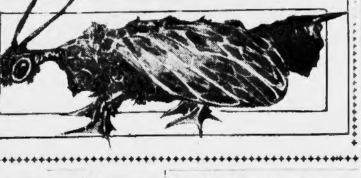
WOMAN WITH FAN KNOCKS OUT QUEEREST BUG EVER

MRS. BURNHAM'S BIG BUG.
Actual size.



It Is An Entomological Composite, Has Silver Scales and Big Sting and Armor-Plated Head

FARMINGTON, N. H., July 25.—An extraordinary bug, captured by Richard W. Burnham, superintendent of the shoe factory, is the cynosure of all eyes on account of his peculiar shape.

This bug flew into Mr. Burnham's front piazza and was knocked out by a deft blow from Mrs. Burnham's fan. Before the bug recovered he had been picked up by Mr. Burnham. He now occupies a glass jar with a paper cover, wherein he may be plainly observed.

An expert from the Smithsonian Institute's entomological staff is expected here soon to study the creature, which is the oddest thing in the bug line that Farmington ever saw.

It might be stated here that Farmington is a "no-license" community.

This bug, insect or reptile, whatever he might be called, is about three inches long with big wings, which spread six inches from tip to tip. He—or she—has a mouse colored body, banded alternately with scales like a fish and fuzz like a caterpillar. The scales are silver-colored, contrasting pleasantly with the mouse-colored fuzz.

The tail is built like a fan, ending in a vicious "sting," which is spike-shaped and capable apparently of dealing terrific execution. The neck is long and spindle-shaped but the head big and square, with goggle eyes and two long antennae rising majestically from the top. The front elevation of the head is square and capped by a horny shell, as though to be used as a battering ram.

The odd thing about the bug is that it is web-footed, showing that it has aquatic proclivities.

The burning question is "what is this bug," or "is it a bug after all."

It has been argued that the creature is part mouse, bug, insect, fish, reptile and bird, a sort of entomological composite. The story of its capture spread through the town and Mr. Burnham was subjected to a good deal of chaffing. To all he simply said: "I've got the bug at home. If you want to see it, come up to the house."

In consequence of this invitation, the "bug" has been holding a series of receptions in his glass jar. All who have seen it admit that they never saw a bug like this one before.

Mr. Burnham claims that this is a bug "as is a bug."

So far there has been no argument on this proposition.

RUSSELL SAGE TO BE GUARDED IN THE GRAVE

Burglar-Proof Steel Walls That Enclose Metal Coffin Cost $22,000.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Russell Sage's body was taken from his Fifth avenue house to-day to the Grand Central Depot whence it was transferred to Troy and buried in a steel-lined grave in Oakwood Cemetery. The body and the funeral party travelled on the funeral car, Kenelco, which was attached to the Montreal express, leaving at 9:45. Before the coffin was placed in the hearse that carried it to the station, the Rev. Dr. Andrew Hallgeman, associate pastor of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, made a short prayer and read a selection from the Psalms. There were present only Mrs. Sage and three or four relatives.

Outside of the house a small squad of police were posted to keep the curious persons at a distance. Not more than a score or so of early morning pedestrians in the avenue halted to watch the proceedings. Some of them removed their hats as the coffin was borne across the sidewalk by the undertaker's men. More police picketed the approach to the funeral car.

Fear Grave Robbers.

The coffin rested in a compartment in the front of the car. About it were banked flowers. The compartment in the rear of the car which was fitted up with parlor car seats was occupied by Mrs. Sage, Dr. Hagaman, Mrs. John P. Munn, Colonel J. J. Slocum, Mrs. Sage's brother, Major Herbert Slocum, her nephew, a few other the nurses who attended Mr. Sage during his illness.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken that the body shall not be disturbed in its last resting place. The cost of the steel-lined grave alone will be $22,000, and the coffin itself, which is of heavy metal, represents the expenditure of another $1,000. The fear that the body might in some way be stolen, as was that of A. T. Stewart, has influenced the family to resort to every measure to guarantee that the tomb be not despoiled. The contrivance is equipped with electrical alarm signals, and it is not at all improbable that a guard will be assigned to keep watch at night.

Will to Be Read To-morrow.

The steel grave weighs three tons and is of carefully tempered metal. It is strong enough to resist repeated charges of dynamite and is so fashioned that it would be impossible to open it by any ordinary means. It is seven feet eleven inches long, forty-two inches wide and thirty-two inches in depth.

The grave is beside that of Mr. Sage's first wife. The epitaph which is to be engraved on the monument is:

"I have done the best that I could by the light of the day."

Mrs. Sage and a few friends left New York at 9:45 a. m. to-day for Troy, in a special funeral car attached to the Montreal express.

It is expected that the contents of the will of Mr. Sage will be made public to-morrow.

DOUGLAS OUR ONLY HOPE, SAY FOES OF MORAN

District Attorney's Opponents Would Like to Get Ex-Governor to Run.

"Douglas is our only hope," says a member of the Democratic State Committee affiliated with that faction of it that is trying desperately to sweep back the rising tide of public sentiment that threatens to land District Attorney John B. Moran in the Governor's chair.

"He is the only man in sight that could make a showing in the convention against Moran, and the leaders of the State organization fully realize that," says the State committeeman. "Harry Skeffington has been trying to demonstrate to Douglas that he is wanted, and sometimes it looks as if the ex-Governor might come back to the field. Most of us, however, have despaired of persuading him to stand for a fight.

"We believe that he would willingly stand for another nomination if there was no opposition, but he won't fight Moran for the nomination. For that matter, no one else of any size seems willing to lead the fight.

Thayer Has Closed Up.

John R. Thayer of Worcester, who started off in a very belligerent mood and threatened to go it single-handed against Moran, has suddenly closed up like a clam. His Worcester friends say that he has decided to do no more talking and to allow matters to drift along as they may. The State Committee does not want John A. Sullivan. It has discovered that he is not so large in the public eye as he supposed he was. There's nothing left of the Sullivan boom. Henry M. Whitney has served notice that he will not be a candidate for Governor. It might be possible to change his mind, but the attempt will not be made until all hope of getting Douglas has been given up.

"Charles S. Hamlin would suit some of the leaders, but there are others who would rather see Moran the candidate. I don't think Gaston would enthuse over Hamlin. James B. Carroll of Springfield absolutely refuses to listen to any proposition relative to being a candidate for the nomination for Governor.

"I don't know why it is, but there is no talk for General Bartlett, who should have the undivided support of the men at the head of the State Committee. There is the situation, and that's why I say Douglas is our only hope."

Gaston Coming Soon.

Chairman Quincy says there are no conferences of leaders on the slate, and insists that there is nothing new in the political line worth mentioning. Colonel Gaston is expected home from Maine the latter part of this week, and after that the caucus plans will probably be rushed. Gaston's friends are telling an old story in new style.

They are saying that he is sick and tired of politics and will have nothing to do with the campaign this year. Some people remember having heard the same thing before. In the Republican camp all is quiet. Executive Clerk Mansfield is touring the State telling the high privates what Lodge wants them to do this Fall and fixing up the delegate slates in the smaller cities and towns.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

Action on the open shop notices posted in sheet metal working shops will be taken by the Sheet Metal Workers' Union at a special meeting to be held in Paine Memorial hall Thursday night. The union has requested an increase in wages from $3 to $3.50 a day, to take effect on August 1. Many of the employers have signed the new agreement; but some of these have also posted notices that their places are to be conducted as open shops. On account of the fact that the open shop notices are identical, the members of the union are satisfied that there is a concerted attempt to combat the union's request.

FOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

Cigar Box Makers' Union expects to acquire an eight-hour day and a wage scale ranging from $13 to $18 without any serious difficulty. In addition to this they are to get the Saturday half-holiday. About 300 men will be benefited. The new scale will go into effect September 1. Some of the shops have already agreed to the new scale of wages and hours, and this fact will induce those who have thus far delayed in signing to comply with the union's demand.

CARPENTERS TO MEET.

Carpenters' District Council will hold a special meeting at No. 30 Hanover street, Thursday night, which every member of the thirty-four affiliated unions has been ordered to attend. Business of importance will come before the meeting. The officers of the council have been in conference with a corporation regarding contract work on a wharf, with the purpose of securing the eight-hour day for the men employed there.

LABOR NOTES.

The Wage Earners' Central Club will hold a special meeting at Wells Memorial building to-night.

Coopers' Union No. 58 will hold a special meeting in Cohen's Hall, Cross street, to-morrow night. Practically all the shops have granted the increase of ten per cent in wages which the union requested.

M. P. Flanagan will represent Firemen's Union No. 3 at the international convention at Omaha next month.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 will meet in regular session at Investigator Hall, No. 9 Appleton st., Friday night. Two ten-cent assessments have been levied, one in aid of the Waltham bleachery workers and the other for rag selecters of Chelsea. All members owing private loans must pay the required percentage or stand suspended. A proposition to levy eight twenty-five-cent assessments will be acted on.

BURR M'INTOSH REPEATS TALK

SWAMPSCOTT, July 25.—Burr McIntosh will repeat to-night the interesting talk on the Orient which he gave to a society audience at the home of Mrs. John Shepard at Phillip's Beach last night. Proceeds from the two lectures are to be donated to the Holy Name Episcopal Church. It was planned last night to have the talk on the lawn, but rain sent the gathering indoors. If it is fair to-night the second lecture will be an outdoor one.

CAMP LOTS $50, 1-acre farms $100, at Glen Echo Lake, North Stoughton, the most picturesque summer resort, where we have sold 376 lots in three weeks, and four cottages are being built already. The camp lots are 125 feet from the water, and have all the shore privileges. Probably a dozen houses will be erected there this season, and the lots will double in value. It is a most beautiful lake of spring water, clear as crystal, great fishing. On this land are beautiful groves, high bluffs and gentle shores. Here you can, with the material on the ground, build a rustic log cabin or a stone castle. You can get an acre of good, fertile land, free from rocks, for $1 per week. Is it not for your interest and that of your family to secure an acre or more, where you can make a living raising poultry and vegetables, and have a beautiful country home embowered in trees and surrounded by flowers. Free excursion Sundays at 10. BARTLETT, 89 Court st.

DO YOU WANT TO SELL?

Lending Money Without Interest

That Was the USUAL Thing Once Upon a Time. But Times Change

A news article from Jersey City begins as follows:

"Altruistic Loan Fund. Jewesses Establish a Bank That Loans Money Without Taking Interest."

The article goes on to tell of a number of ladies who have incorporated an association "To loan to poor, needy and deserving persons, without said persons, the borrowers, paying interest for said loans."

This piece of news is interesting and suggestive.

In the first place, it shows that the incorporators of this strange association have intelligence as well as kindness of heart.

There is nothing people need so much as TO BE HELPED TO HELP THEMSELVES.

Many a poor man and poor woman have gone down to destruction because at the critical moment a small loan could not be obtained.

The lending of money is an absolutely essential part of life, AND SO IS THE BORROWING OF MONEY, EVEN WITH THE RICHEST.

Of the great business enterprises in the United States very few indeed could survive a single year IF THEIR CREDIT WERE CUT OFF.

All business is conducted on credit. Every real dollar in the country does the work of a hundred dollars through the writing of checks, the making of notes, etc.

From this system of credit, which is the life blood of prosperity, THE POOR ALONE ARE CUT OFF.

There are, it is true, pawnshops that make loans on clothing, and that are compelled to charge a high rate of interest, almost confiscatory.

But as a general proposition the deserving poor person is deprived of the facility of credit EVEN WITHIN HIS MEANS TO REPAY, a facility essential to prosperity everywhere.

These Jewish ladies have set a good example to others, and incidentally they have gone back to the old principles of humanity in organizing an association to lend without interest.

There was a time in the history of men when it was looked upon as a disgrace to take interest from ANYBODY.

Practically all interest was looked upon as usury. If a man lent money to another, he did it to oblige a friend. He would have been insulted at the idea of taking interest, of accepting back any more than he had lent.

But the world has become commercial; those old times have passed, and they had to pass.

Interest is as legitimate as any OTHER kind of profit.

If a man has saved a dollar, he is entitled to be paid for its use, just as he would be entitled to be paid for the use of a horse or a house if he had invested the money in horse or house.

While we continue our system of selling things for more than they cost, of using our brains to live on one another, the taking of interest will be just as legitimate as any other way of getting possession of the money which another man has.

Meanwhile, it is encouraging to see a number of women devoting their time and money to helping intelligently those that need help badly.

The poor man who cannot borrow is in a desperate condition. He can offer only his honesty and his ability to work as security.

AND, UNFORTUNATELY, OUR COMMERCIAL SYSTEM DOES NOT LOOK UPON HONESTY AS "COLLATERAL."

The fact that the ladies who have undertaken to manage and finance this wisely philanthropic enterprise are of JEWISH blood is also interesting.

We commend that fact to those whose animal race prejudice and religious prejudice—a brutal superstition which they mistake for real religious feeling—leads them to foolish denunciation of the Jews.

The Jews, educated and fighting against long odds centuries before our people had got out of the northern forests and swamps, learned long before us the A B C's of commerce and of business.

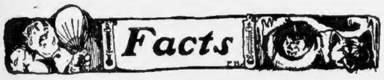
And we, following in their footsteps as a nation, and often jealous of their success as individuals, have a little way of pretending that the Jewish way of making money or collecting interest is different from our way.

Those who have emphasized this part of Jewish ability and enterprise will kindly not forget also to emphasize the fact that the first institution to lend money with no interest whatever IS JEWISH. If that gives them any fresh ground for race hatred, let them make the most of it.

It ought also to be mentioned, while talking about lending money to the poor, THAT THOSE WHO LEND MONEY TO THE POOR GET THEIR MONEY BACK.

On the East Side in the city of New York an association lends small sums to working people at low interest. They simply make sure that they are dealing with an average honest working man or woman. AND THEY NEVER LOSE A DOLLAR OF THE MONEY.

That is more than can be said of people who lend money in Wall street sometimes, with the most eminently respectable names written on the backs of the notes.



Facts

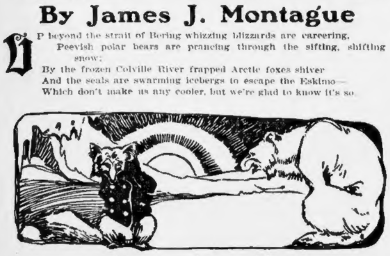
UP beyond the strait of Bering whizzing blizzards are careering,
Peevish polar bears are prancing through the sifting, shifting snow;
By the frozen Colville River frapped Arctic foxes shiver
And the seals are swarming icebergs to escape the Eskimo—
Which don't make us any cooler, but we're glad to know it's so.



"Frapped Arctic Foxes Shiver"

WHERE the Pole looms dark and dreary, which the enterprising Peary
Yearly has discovered—nearly—biting, bitter breezes blow;
The thermometers endeavor to remain affixed forever
Immovably and solid, at ninety-eight below—
Which don't glad our hearts to speak of, but it's int'resting to know.

UP on Greenland's glacial ranges, where the weather never changes,
Before you breathe you have to use a stove to melt the air;
There is little perspiration up that way, and heat prostration
Is so strikingly infrequent it's considered rather rare—
All of which is very pleasant, though, somehow, we do not care.

HOWEVER the battle is ended,
Though proudly the victor comes
With fluttering flags and prancing nags
And echoing roll of drums,
Still truth proclaims this motto
In letters of living light—
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right.

Though the heel of the strong oppressor
May grind the weak in the dust,
And the voices of fame with one acclaim
May call him great and just,
Let those who applaud take warning
And keep this motto in sight—
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right.

Let those who have failed take courage;
Though the enemy seems to have won,
Though his ranks are strong, if he be in the wrong
The battle is not yet done.
For sure as the morning follows
The darkest hour of the night
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right.

O, man bowed down with labor!
O, woman, young, yet old!
O, heart oppressed in the toilers' breast
And crushed by the power of gold!
Keep on with the weary battle
Against triumphant might—
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right.

It Worked Both Ways

By Wex Jones

SMITH'S wife had gone to the mountains, so he prepared a stack of postals, gave them to his stenographer with instructions to mail one every day, and went to Saratoga with a few friends.

Mrs. Smith got postal No. 1. "Working away at business this hot weather. Miserable without you." "Poor man," she murmured, "he must be lonely."

Next day postal No. 2. "Home seems a desert. Miss you terribly." "Poor John," said Mrs. Smith, "it's a shame for me to be here enjoying myself, while he slaves away in loneliness."

Postal No. 3 came the next morning. "Can hardly live without you. Life a blank."

Mrs. Smith packed her trunks and went home.

There was trouble.

This year Smith thought he'd be wise. The first postal he left for mailing to his absent wife was: "Getting along splendidly. Having great time."

"Hump!" said Mrs. Smith.

Next postal: "Best time of my life. Stay as long as you like and don't bother about me. I'm all right."

This time Mrs. Smith started home the second day.

When she arrived there was trouble again.

Little Editorials from the People

LOCAL OPTION IN TAXATION IN NEW ZEALAND

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Regarding your interesting editorials on conditions in New Zealand, the world's experimental station for sociological reforms, it would perhaps interest your readers to learn that for the past ten years the taxpayers of New Zealand have enjoyed the right of local option in taxation, a law which permits the taxpayers in any community to decide by ballot the method of taxation by which they shall raise their local revenue. Between sixty and seventy cities and towns have taken advantage of the principle of home rule and voted to adopt the single tax.

So well has this natural system of taxation worked that it is doubtful if the old system is ever resurrected. Taxation of all land at its full value has caused a brisk demand for labor and raised wages higher than the trade union rate.

When the people of Massachusetts and every other State has the right of local option in taxation they can try the single tax, and workingmen who then want to take advantage of the AMERICAN'S commendable advice by securing homes of their own will be able to do so without being held up by land speculators.
